McCarl Shuts Off Pay Of All 'Red' Teachers 'In or Out of Schools'

Ruling Hits Janitors and Other Employes of D. C. System.

Must Sign Pledges Each Salary Day

Decision, in Conflict With Prettyman, Is 'Bombshell.'

Comptroller General J. Raymond McCarl, in a blunt but sweeping ruling, yesterday forbade payment of salaries or wages to any employe of the District public schools who "teaches or advocates communism" in or out of the schools.

McCarl's ruling brushed aside the earlier opinion of E. Barrett Prettyman, corporation counsel, who had ruled that teaching about communism was not "teaching" or 'advocating" communism in the sense which Congress intended when it prohibited payment of salaries to "any person teaching or advocating communism."

So broad was the McCarl ruling that school and District officials said it would include janitors and others employed in the schools. It would flatly prevent employment of any Communist, whether the Communist carried his beliefs into the schools or not, they said.

McCarl's ruling apparently was voluntary. Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, said he had not asked for any other ruling than that which had been given authorities by Mr. Prettyman. School officials also said they had not asked for any ruling from McCarl.

At Mr. McCarl's office it was informally explained that issuance of the ruling was a matter of routine. Similar action had been taken in connection with the wage laws on Government contracts, it was pointed out.

Enforcement a Problem.

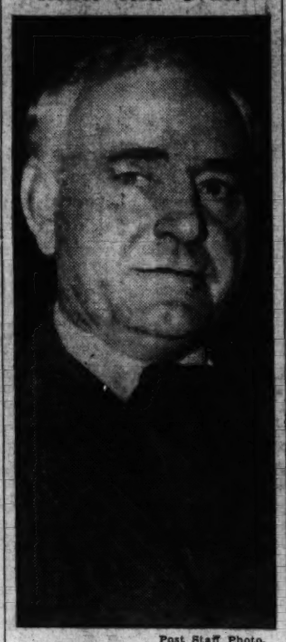

Exact application of the seemingly unequivocal ruling had officials guessing. Maj. Donovan and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, conferred in the latter's office with Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, but came to no conclusion.

Dr. Ballou said he might have a statement for publication today. Maj. Donovan said Dr. Ballou or other school authorities would have to do whatever talking was done.

Mrs. Doyle left the half-hour conference before it was concluded. She hurried to a radio broadcasting station, whence she broadcast an address in which she said that education must not only imbue pupils with the ideals of democracy, but teach them they must be willing to

PWA Policy Shift Denied By Roosevelt

Foreign Buying Stand Not New, He Claims; Differential Up.

By Felix Bruner.

President Roosevelt yesterday empahtically denied that changes in PWA regulations governing purchase of foreign building materials represented any change in Government policy.

At the same time, the President announced that the PWA differential in favor of American-made materials had been increased from 15 per cent to 25 per cent to conform with the differential fixed by the procurement division of the Treasury.

He also revealed that the Treasury will investigate to determine whether there is "dumping" of German steel in this country. Meanwhile, it was indicated that the Federal Trade Commission investigation of alleged collusive bidding by American steel makers supplying material for PWA projects will be vigorously pushed. Secretary Ickes is preparing to present the charges to the commission.

Coal as well as steel will become involved in the controversy Monday, when John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, will head a delegation of anthracite miners to the White House to request an increase in the tariff on hard coal from Russia.

Claims Underselling.

Lewis said last night that 350,000 tons of Russian coal had come to this country as ballast last year and had been sold along the Atlantic seaboard. He said that in spite of the $2 duty on this coal the Russians were able to undersell American producers because of conditions under which the coal is mined.

Asked at his press conference to comment on the "change of policy" announced by Ickes, the President, plainly indignant, declared that when a newspaper says to the public that any department of the Government is changing its policy in regard to the purchase of foreign materials it is guilty of deliberate misrepresentation.

Secretary Ickes, Mr. Roosevelt said, definitely stated that the policy of the Government is not and never was to buy foreign materials. If it were determined that a foreign government was subsidizing a foreign bidder on American projects, he said this would operate against acceptance of the foreign bid. He said the change in the differential percentage had been made when it became evident that the percentage was not high enough.

Two Projects Involved.

The two projects specifically involved are the Tri-Borough Bridge in New York and the Morehead City ocean terminal project in North Carolina. In both instances German bids were much lower than those of the American companies even with a 25 per cent differential.

The President added that he did not believe the order for German steel for the Tri-Borough Bridge could be stopped.

From Chicago the Associated Press reported that Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador, said that it was his understanding that the type of steel specified for the New York project was not available in this country.

"I feel certain that no laws of the United States are being broken," he was quoted as saying.

Nazi Decrees Deprive Jews Of Civil Rights

Laws Limiting Marriage Sphere, Denying Ballot Put Into Effect.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Nov. 15.—Jews were stripped of all political rights by the Nazi government today and were forbidden to marry gentiles.

Official decrees put into effect the sweeping citizenship and racial laws approved by the Reichstag at its Nurenberg meeting in September, during the Nazi Party convention.

Thus Germany's Jews are deprived of the right to vote, to hold public office or even to be employed by the government.

Only a special dispensation from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler can exempt Jews and part Jews from these restrictions. The decree also forbids the employment of female Aryan servants under the age of 35 in Jewish households.

"The Jew cannot be a Reich's citizen, cannot vote or occupy public office," said the decree, published in the official gazette. "Jewish functionaries of the government will be pensioned December 31, 1935."

A separate decree, covering the "blood and honor" laws, forbade marriages between Jews and "quarter Jews" or between "quarter Jews" themselves.

Part Jews may retain full citizenship unless they are members of the Jewish faith and are married to Jews. The decree defines who is to be considered a Jew and who a part Jew.

On all questions of citizenship or intermarriage Hitler is the final court of appeal. He may grant dispensations exempting individuals from provisions of the law.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency said that the decrees do not define

Two Mystery Men Hunted in Murder

Miss Edith Tavenner leaving Upper Marlboro Courthouse after talking to Lieut. Joseph Itzel on the Loring case.

Reason for Wanting Pair Withheld as Lieut. Itzel Announces He Has Definite Theory on Corinna Loring's Slaying; Two More Questioned.

Two men living in Prince Georges County, Md., were sought last night in connection with the Corinna Loring murder.

Police Chief Eugene Plumer, of Mount Rainier, and Sergt. Ralph Brown, county officer, planned to visit the homes of the men last night. They would not reveal why they wanted to talk to them.

Lieut. Joseph H. Itzel, Baltimore detective in charge of the investigation, said yesterday he now has a definite theory as to why Corinna was beaten and strangled after she left her Mount Rainier home on the eve of her wedding. However, he refused to say what his theory was.

At the murder inquiry headquarters in the Upper Marlboro Courthouse, Itzel yesterday talked to Miss Edith Tavenner, NRA employe, described as a "sweetheart" of Richard Tear before the latter fell in love with Corinna.

Afterward, Itzel said:

"Miss Tavenner could not contribute anything of value to the case. She was very frank in her talk with me."

Itzel had the same to say about Harold R. Peddinghaus, employe of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, who lives in the 1700 block East Capitol street. He was brought into the inquiry through a strange series of circumstances.

Mrs. M. Rozier Burroughs, 1217 Thirty-third street northwest, told police a woman peddler came to her house and began talking about the Loring murder. She said she had hitch-hiked into the city from Hyattsville. However, when she left, Mrs. Burroughs said, she jumped into an automobile that seemed to be waiting for her.

Stephen Devine, a roomer in the Burroughs home, made a note of the license number of the automobile and gave it to police. They traced it to Peddinghaus and asked the latter to go to Upper Marlboro.

He explained to Itzel yesterday that he happened to have his car

Drizzle Douses City as Snows Cloak Midwest

As the season's first major snow storm swirled through the Middle West, a dreary, steady drizzle doused Washington and its suburbs yesterday.

Officials at the Weather Bureau here foresaw no snow or sudden cold snap for the District, and predicted today would be moderately cool, with mists or light rains throughout the day.

Yesterday's maximum temperature here was 45 degrees at 3 p. m. and the low varied slightly, being but 43 at 7 a. m.

The snows in the Middle West proved a menace to highway traffic, the Associated Press reported. Heavy and soggy, the snows in some cases turned to sleet as they fell from Minnesota to the Southwest. Generally, according to the Associated Press, temperatures remained above freezing and snow melted as it hit the ground. King Winter, however, penetrated Crookston, Minn., and the mercury sank to 16 degrees.

Highways generally were glazed by sleet in Minnesota, parts of Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and as far South as Texas, where they were blamed for one death.

Although the Kansas City area's first snow assumed major proportions, airplanes continued to operate, but many were hours behind schedule.

The snow was termed "invaluable" for the wheat by W. A. Atchison, of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, but he said it will cause further delay in cutting and gathering forage crops killed by frosts.

Despite the fact definite cold was not forecast for Washington, thieves entered several downtown department stores early yesterday and stole six fur coats.

Police were ordered last night to wear overcoats as part of their winter uniform. The overcoat will be worn only by those men working the midnight to 8 a. m. shift. Inspector W. G. Stott, head of the clothing and equipment office, issued the order.

Dynamite-Filled Calf Executed by Farmer

Shenandoah, Iowa, Nov. 15 (AP).—R. G. Meyers, Essex, Iowa, farmer, killed his calf today.

It ate dynamite.

"I guess the fool thing mistook the dynamite for rock salt," said Meyers.

The dynamite didn't explode, but it made the calf very ill.

"That's the reason I killed it," said Meyers, "but then you couldn't figure a calf full of dynamite as very safe to have around the barnyard."

Trade Pact Is Signed By Premier King, Hull; Held Step to Recovery

Italians Push On to Jijiga; Battles Rage

Casualties Heavy on Both Sides as Fascists Fight to Reach Railroad.

The Crisis Abroad.

Ras Nassibu, Ethiopian commander in the south, was rushed to the command of forces at Jijiga as Italian advances threatened that town as well as Harar, "second city of Ethiopia."

Italian war planes heavily bombed an encampment near Makale, believed to be that of Ras Seyoum.

Ethiopians near Azbi, about 30 miles south of Makale, who had trapped an Italian column of native Askari troops, were routed. Ethiopians slain were placed at 55, and the Italian deaths were reported at 20 natives. Four Italian officers were wounded.

In Rome, Mussolini issued country-wide orders for a sanctions fight. Italians were heartened by the report a major southern conquest was imminent.

Having won an impressive victory in the elections, the national government of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin in London prepared to increase Britain's land, sea and air forces to support a strong foreign policy.

Italian casualties also have been considerable.

Harar, Ethiopia, Nov. 15.—Ethiopia's southern war lord, Ras Nassibu, hurried to Jijiga today to take personal command of the defense of that key city, endangered by the swift advance of the Italian armies.

Jijiga authorities appealed by telephone for aid, expressing fear the Italian advance forces soon would be within striking distance of the city. Rumors were current here that heavy fighting already had begun, with many casualties on both sides.

The fall of Daggah Bur, less than 100 miles south of Jijiga, appeared imminent.

Almost Within Grasp.

(Dispatches from Rome said even Harar, "second city of Ethiopia," is almost within the Italians' grasp. Harar is 50 miles west of Jijiga and with that city forms the principle defense of the Addis Ababa-Djibouti Railroad, Ethiopia's only modern outlet to the sea.

(At Addis Ababa an official Ethiopian communique said Italian warplanes had rained 50 bombs on Daggah Bur yesterday, killing a priest and burning a church.)

Army headquarters here demonstrated the greatest distress after Fitourani Gwangoul, who ranks

Tories Launch Move to Boost British Arms

Election Won, Nationalists Prepare for a Strong Foreign Policy.

By the United Press.

London, Nov. 15.—Great Britain's national government, returned to power by a reduced, though still impressive, majority, tonight prepared to launch legislation increasing the empire's naval, military and air forces.

The mandate of voters, who balloted overwhelmingly in favor of the Tories in yesterday's election of a House of Commons, was interpreted by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's government as a clear demand for a strong foreign policy. That will require more battleships, soldiers and war planes.

As a result of the national "vote of confidence," the government will continue to support the League of Nations to the hilt, opposing Italy's challenge in the Medterranean with the full force of British diplomacy.

Negotiations for easing tension between Britain and Italy are expected to be continued, but no concrete progress toward settling the Italo-Ethiopian conflict is likely for several months.

Statements of party leaders included:

Stanley Baldwin, Conservative—"It was a splendid result. The country renewed its support of the national government and expressed its confidence in our will and ability to continue the work of national restoration and world peace."

Maj. Clement R. Attlee, Labor—"It is a great satisfaction that so many of the party's leading parliamentarians regain their seats. Their presence will insure a vigorous and effective opposition."

All the votes were not counted tonight, but Conservative Party headquarters announced at 1 p. m. that the necessary majority of 308

U. S.-Canadian Accord Hailed as 'Keystone' of World Peace.

President's Office Scene of Ceremony

Restoration of Mutual Relations Applauded by Roosevelt.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Canadian Prime Minister William Lyons Mackenzie King and Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday signed a reciprocal trade pact, hailing their action as contributing to the economic recovery of their respective countries and as a keystone of a more substantial world peace structure.

The ceremony, informal but dignified and impressive, took place in the circular office of President Roosevelt, who witnessed the signing and applauded this new rapprochement in United States-Canadian affairs, restoring, as it did, the trade relations of the two countries on a basis of mutual agreement for the first time since 1866.

"This is an historic occasion," asserted President Roosevelt, as he shook hands with Premier King at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Stepping Stone for Hull.

How momentous an occasion it was none knew. Future events will determine that. But bound up in the penning of signatures on a pact not yet made public and in the simple exchange of felicitations were the hopes and aspirations of Secretary Hull, not alone for increased trade with Canada, but also for freeing trade the world over. Even greater than that is his dream of world peace, to be achieved by such agreements, for he believes that when trade cannot pass frontiers, armies are apt to force their way across.

All this was suggested in the remarks made by President Roosevelt, Premier King and Secretary Hull in the presence of Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet, high-ranking United States and Canadian officials and a hundred journalists representing the press of all lands.

Details of the agreement concluded between the two North American countries will not be made public until tomorrow afternoon, when they will be revealed to the press simultaneously in Washington and Ottawa, for publication Monday morning.

The agreement does not reuire action by the Senate and will be made effective here, after a lapse of 30 days, by presidential promulgation. Changes in Canadian tariff rates do not require ratification by the Dominion Parliament, but the latter body will have to consent to several substantial modifications in the administrative law of Canada.

Although in his remarks after signing the pact Premier King referred to the document as a "trade treaty," this Government regards the undertaking as an "agreement" and not a treaty.

The difference is a fine one and it is made to circumvent the constitutional requirement that treaties be ratified by the Senate. The making of executive agreements

Assassins Kill Two in Chicago

Machine Forced to Curb by Gunmen's Auto; Dead Identified.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Two men identified from fingerprint records by police as Joseph Scaffido, 30, of Milwaukee, and Angelo Kleros, 24, of Cicero, were slain by assassins today after their automobile was halted on a North Side street.

Police Capt. John Horan said witnesses told him two young men, nattily dressed, followed the victims' car in their own automobile. They forced it to stop on a narrow street, Horan said he was told, and then, brandishing pistols they appeared on either side of the halted machine and opened fire. The victims were each shot several times in the head. Horan said no weapons were found in the dead men's car.

At Milwaukee, Basilio Cusma said he believed one of the victims, Scaffido, was his nephew. Scaffido, he said, borrowed his car this morning.

Girl Ocean Flier Safe in Brazil

Jean Batten Crosses the South Atlantic in Record Time.

By the Associated Press.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 15.—Jean Batten, plucky young New Zealander, arrived in Rio de Janeiro today, long overdue and in another plane, but the proud claimant of a new record.

She was forced down in a salt swamp near Praia Secca, Brazil, about 53 miles north of here, yesterday while flying here after becoming the first woman to fly solo across the South Atlantic.

In conquering the ocean, she said today, she found she had established a speed record for the route—flown regularly by German and French mail planes.

The 25-year-old miss flew from Dakar, Africa, to Natal, Brazil, in 13 hours and 15 minutes.

Officials of Air France, the French mail line, said the previous record was 13 hours and 37 minutes, established in October by Pilot Guillaumet, of their company.

Miss Batten was making good time along the coastline on her flight to Rio yesterday when she suddenly discovered her fuel tank was leaking.

"Nothing remained but a forced landing at the most likely spot," she said. "Sand dragged my wheels, tipping the plane, and the propeller cut into the sand and one of its tips was bent."

She was located by one of three army planes, which had searched for her when she failed to arrive last night. She was flown here today.

She expects to fly from here to Buenos Aires when her plane is fixed.

Central Defeats Eastern, 12-6; Wins Inter-High Championship

By John R. Vosburgh.

Central High won the inter-high championship yesterday—won it before 6,000 spectators at Central Stadium with a thrill-packed 12-to-6 victory over a grimly fighting Eastern team. On one dazzling 10-yard streak by its lightning-like Billy Richardson and one 25-yard pass by the same tiny halfback, the Dark Blue scored two touchdowns in the first quarter and then fought off an aggressive Light Blue eleven which rapped time and again at the door of victory.

Striking back in persistent fashion in the second period, the Lincoln Parkers carred the battle deep into Central territory. But it was not until the last period that this indomitable Eastern team finally saw its stubborn struggle against the odds rewarded by a touchdown when Jack Shugrue, hard-running substitute quarterback, brought the stands to their feet with an 82-yard run for a touchdown.

No badly beaten team was Eastern at the finish. After spotting Central to its big lead the Lincoln Parkers proceeded to reel off a running attack which rolled up 135 yards from scrimmage to 134 by Central.

For Central it can be said it won the title like a true championship team. It struck swiftly and decisively for the necessary points and then settled back to hold its margin with a superb defensive game against an Eastern team as dangerous in the air as it was on the ground. It was Central's second

Chatmoss Wins as Long Shots Come Home at Bowie Opening

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Nov. 15.—To the rustle of the heavy money, Bowie added to its reputation as Maryland's longshot track on the opening day of the 14-day session at the nearby Prince Georges County turf plant. The results board was sagging virtually throughout the program in a manner that warmed the hearts of those who cashed, making them forget a chilly, penetrating atmosphere.

There was but a single lull in the parade of the "Moon Shots," as the turf regulars call them, and the fact that Chatmoss, winner of the feature race, paid $25 was only in keeping with the spirit of the day.

Naturally, the daily double provided the fortunate with a splendid return. The 18 $2 tickets sold on the winning combination produced a pay-off of $331.40. The winning team was that of Glenbroom in the first race and Someone Else in the third race. The possible mutuels, after the first winner was known, ranged from $32.90 on those tickets ending with Atholton, to $745.70 on those with Mate Tea, the second horse.

The feature race, the Bowie Claiming Stakes, was run over a slow track and provided an interesting contest. There was no luck attached to Chatmoss' victory. Mrs. T. E. Proctor's representative was fortunate in drawing the services of Jockey Harry Richards, but he showed a world of stretch punch and could have won by a greater

McCarl Ruling Stops Pay for 'Red' Teachers

Ban Applies to All School Employes 'In or Out' of Clasroom.

stand hardship if necessary to protect "our system of government."

Formal request for an elaboration of the ruling is expected to go forward to Mr. McCarl next week. It is to be considered at the next meeting of the board of education. This is to be held on Wednesday.

Must Sign Statements

Teachers and others on the school pay rolls must, under the McCarl ruling, sign a statement each pay day. The prescribed statement follows:

"I, ——, an official, teacher, or, other employe (strike out the inapplicable words), of the District of Columbia schools, hereby state that I have knowledge of the provision appearing in the Act of Congress approved June 14, 1935 (Public No. 138), as follows:

"'That hereafter no part of any appropriation for the public schools shall be available for the payment of the salary of any person teaching or advocating communism.'

and further state, without reservation and for the purpose of obtaining payment of salary otherwise due me, that I did not at any time during the period —— to —— 193—, (the periodfo r which the salary payment relates) in any school of the District of Columbia, or elsewhere, teach or advocate communism."

All persons on the school rolls who have received any salaries or wages since enactment of the anti-communism provision of the school appropriation law are to be required to sign th esame statement covering salaries paid during that period, Mr. McCarl said.

No Immediate Effect.

The ruling did not affect the salaries paid yesterday to janitors and other school employes who are paid regularly twice each month. Teachers and other officials are paid only at the end of each month. The ruling is not expected to interfere with payment of salaries to these at the end of this month, even though detailed application may not have been worked out nor the machinery set up for the presentation and collection of the prescribed statements, Dr. Ballou and Maj. Donovan said.

Regular salaries will be regularly paid, they said. Until the required statements are presented for each employe, however, the Comptroller General will refuse to certify to transfer of District appropriations to that use. Salary payments made in violation of the new rule would have to be refunded by the District to the Federal Government.

"If, for any reason," McCarl concluded his ordre, "an official, teacher, or other employe of the District of Columbia schools is unable to make the foregoing written statement, the facts in the particular case should be submitted to this office for consideration in connection with any salary payments heretofore made to such person and appearing in the accounts of disbursements."

Decision a "Bombshell."

The Comptroller General's order was something of a bombshell among District and school authorities. They had been resting on the carefully considered opinion of Mr. Prettyman, who said Congress did not intend to forbid teaching that communism existed, but prohibited its advocacy. He said that obviously it was not the intent of Congress to forbid teaching that communism was not desirable.

The Prettyman ruling had created a furor which developed into an organized campaign led by Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, former head of the Army Chemical Warfare Service and the American Legion.

"Three cheers for McCarl," Gen. Fries said when informed of the ruling.

Mr. McCarl "went the whole hog," as one official phrased it informally. His ruling not only took in the conduct of school employes in connection with their school duties, but went much farther. The anticommunism edict of Congress, he said, applied to their teaching or advocacy "elsewhere" as well.

Between You and Me

U.S. Transportation's Suicide; Wallace vs. Cities; Why Not Ban Fascism, Monarchism Study?

By Raymond Clapper

CONSIDERABLE heavy worrying is going on under the surface over the railroads.

Normal processes of recovery are counted upon to restore most of our industries to their accustomed good health. Not even the most optimistic hope for any such recuperation from the railroads. They face some major operations and careful nursing before they will be able to stand on their own feet again.

Commissioner Eastman, of I. C., feels probably more strongly than others in the Government that conditions inevitably will bring about Government ownership in time. While he does not appear to advocate such a solution he does not attempt to conceal the fact that he would not regard that as a calamity.

Chairman Jesse Jones, of R. F. C., through which some $500,000,000 have been pumped into the hardened arteries of the railroads, has frankly stated his belief that the Government will have to provide more financial assistance, and that along with this must go increased Government supervision of management.

Those represent two of the main approaches found among government officials.

From the side of private business, some serious study is being given to the future of the railroads. Large insurance companies, for instance, hold portfolios heavy with railroad securities and naturally they are greatly concerned over the gloomy prospect.

A new organization was formed recently to do some deep spade work on the railroad problem. This organization, the Transportation Association of America, of which the executive vice president is Donald D. Conn, a traffic expert of many years experience, outlines the problem roughly as follows:

First, there is the rise of competing forms of transportation—automobiles, trucks, buses, airplanes, pipelines and waterways. During the last 20 years more than $16,000,000,000 in public funds has been spent on improved highways. Another $16,000,000,000 has been put into automotive equipment for service over these highways. There is a brand new nation-wide transportation system representing a combined public and private investment of $32,000,000,000 which is competing with the railroads for a volume of traffic which probably is not much larger now than a decade or so ago.

Second, there is the actual condition of the railroads today. Mr. Conn says that only 7 of the 50 largest railroad systems earned enough during the first half of this year to cover expenses, taxes and fixed charges. Forty-three of them failed to earn their incurred financial obligations. He says an "alarmingly" large percentage of railroad mileage is in bankruptcy with others on the brink, and still others heretofore considereded the backbone of the industry failing to earn their fixed charges. Some half billion dollars of Government money now under loan to railroads must be paid off before the roads can be released from the Government mortgage bonds.

Third, there is the situation in the competing forms of transportation. Mr. Conn estimates that more than 75 per cent of for-hire truck operations on the highways are conducted at a net loss. And few, if any, could show reasonable earnings on invested capital if proper allowances were made for depreciation, insurance and fair labor conditions. Coastwise, intercoastal and inland shipping, he says, also operates to a large extent without profit.

The group which Mr. Conn represents appears to believe that transportation facilities are overadequate for the traffic to be served. Cut-throat competition and duplication of facilities have demoralized the Nation's whole transportation system. NRA was not very successful in dealing with such situations in other industries, but the Transportation Association of America, which combines in its directorship shippers, bankers, railroad men, truckers and life-insurance executives, is undertaking research on the problem.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace advances another reason why he believes agriculture should be well treated. He says that in no large city is there a sufficient excess of births over edaths to maintain the population. Cities, to expand, must recruit their population from the country. Yet, Wallace says, the expense of rearing these future city dwellers, and of educating them, falls upon country people.

There's another job for AAA. Why not send a benefit payment to the parents whenever a son or daughter is sent to the city to be plowed under?

After a hard fight, Washington school teachers apparently are going to be gagged now on the usbject of Soviet Russia. They can't tell their pupils how the Soviet government operates because a law of Congress, as finally interpreted, seems to forbid the teaching of communism." We don't believe in communism in this country, so we won't let the subject be mentioned in the public schools. Having made this great forward stride, the next thing is to stop the teaching of monarchy and Fascism.

School teachers ought not be allowed to tell their pupils about the Postoffice Department either. It is a thoroughly socialistic institution.

And while we are at it, why not make the little rascals read the speeches of James M. Beck and Herbert Hoover on the Constitution? No use stopping with halfway measures.

Early Arrest Seen In Buchanan Case

Hagerstown Police Trace New Murder Clews.

Special Correspondence to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 15.—Police are tracing new clews in an effort to solve the murder of David L. Buchanan, aged rooming house proprietor, several months ago. The grand jury found insufficient evidence against John Burke, Philadelphia race track follower.

Police withheld the new clews, but an early arrest is expected.

Burke was one of many boarders at Buchanan's rooming house during the Hagerstown race meet last May. On the night of the closing of the meet, Buchanan was beaten to death in a roo madjoining his office-bedroom. His body was found the next day and a search for two men started. Burke was traced to the Charles Town, W. Va., race track, where he was arrested. His room at a Martinsburg rooming house was searched and in the adjacent room the sleeve of a bloody shirt was found. He denied any knowledge of it.

The second man has not been found.

Premier King And Hull Sign Pact on Trade

U. S.-Canadian Agreement Hailed as Step Toward Recovery, Peace.

without Senate ratification has been practiced by the American Government for many decades. Such agreements, however, have all the force of treaties.

Wide Changes Expected.

The terms of the agreement are understood to affect a large number of commodities, produced in both Canada and the United States. In many instances existing tariffs have been reduced as much as 50 per cent. In addition the Canadians have agreed to revise their customs valuation methods in order to stabilize the basas for their traiff rates, a concession greatly desired by American shippers.

Prime Minister King arrived in Washington, for the second time in ten days, at 12:40 p. m. yesterday. He had luncheon at the Canadian Legation, arriving at the White House at 3:30 p. m., accompanied by Dr. O. D. Skeleton, undersectary of state for external affairs of the Dominion of Canada; Hume Wrong, Canadian Charge d'Affaires here; Edward A. Pickering, his private secretary; Norman Armour, American Minister to Canada, and other Canadian attaches. The entire party was formally attired in cut-aways and top hats.

A session of the Cabinet was adjourned on their arrival and all proceeded to the President's office. Premier King was seated at the Presidnt's right bfore the latter's huge desk, cleared of the array of elephants, donkeys and other ornamental gadgets which usually adorn it. Secretary Hull took a seat at Premier King's right. Before the latter and the Secretary of State were ngravd copis of the pact, open at the page prepared for the signatures.

The Cabinet members grouped themselves behind the three seated statesmen, Ther also were the other members of the Canadian party, Undersecretary of State William Phillips, Assistant Secretary of State Francis Sayre(Henry F. Grady, chief of the Trade Agreements Section, and others who had negotiated the agreement. A short distance from the desk the press assembld with a dozn photographers ready with cameras and electric flash builbs.

the status of Jews in the field of commerce and that this commission is believed to have been prompted by the fear that if Jews were ousted completely from Germany's economic life it would influence the United States to stay out of the Olympic games.

As a result, the agancy said, it is believed the economic decrees have been deferred rather than abandoned.

The decrees today were signed by Hitler, Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, and Rudolph Hess, minister without portfolio, the agency said.

Teachers Not Affected.

If Jews participated in the World War at the front, said the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, quoting from the decrees, "fighting for Germany and her allies, they are to receive pensions. * * * The position of Jewish teachers in the Jewish public schools remains unaffected pending reorganization of the Jewish school system."

Other details of the decrees, as outlined by the agency, include:

Foreign citizens desiring to marry a Jew in Germany may not be refused a license without consulting the minister of the interior.

Marriage between Jews and "non-Aryans" with only one Jewish grandparent is prohibited. "Non-Aryans" with two Jewish grandparents must obtain a special permit before marriage to an Aryan or a "non-Aryan" with one Jewish grandparent.

Marriage between "non-Aryans" in the one-Jewish-grandparent category is strictly forbidden on the ground that it would increase the amount of Jewish blood in their families.

The first case of a Jewess arrested on a charge of having intimate relations with an Aryan man was reported today in Bavaria. Both the man and the woman were jailed.

Heretofore the drive against "race traitors" has been confined to Jewish males.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency said the minister of posts today ordered that Der Stuermer, Julius Streicher's anti-Semitic weekly, be displayed on bulletin boards in all post offices throughout Germany.

Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, the agency reported, in an address to the Culture Senate this afternoon said Jews had been completely purged from Germany's cultural life.

The agency said Dr. Stuckart, state secretary of the Association of National Socialist Jurists, asserted at a press conference that the new anti-Jewish decrees would be augmented soon.

Bids Will Be Asked On Salisbury By-Pass

Salisbury, Nov. 15.—The State Roads Commission will ask for bids tomorrow on construction of the first section of the proposed Salisbury by-pass which, in fact, is a re-location of .U S. Route No. 13 through the city.

The Mayor and Council, Chamber of Commerce and others have waged a campaign for more than three years to interest the State Roads Commission in the project. The completed plans call for a course paralleling the Pennsylvania Railroad track through the city terminating in North Division street, on a 70-foot right-of-way.

Corinna Loring Probers Hunt Mystery Pair

parked in the neighborhood and the woman peddler asked him to give her a lift. He said he had never seen her before.

Hicks Combs Scene.

One person—either a man or woman—of medium strength could have dragged the body of Corinna Loring to the spot where she was found on desolate Saddleback Ridge.

Robert W. Hicks, youthful criminologist, continuing his scientific investigation of the crime, announced this last night after a visit to the murder scene.

Shortly before dusk, as a dozen reporters and photographers looked on, Hicks conducted a minute examination of the bleak, wooded section on the outskirts of Mount Rainier where the young woman's body was discovered.

By calculations and measurements, he deduced that from the crest of Saddleback Ridge (where an automobile could have been parked) to the exact spot where Corinna's body lay, the ground sloped in such a manner that she could have been dragged with comparative ease.

In 38 feet, the distance from the ridge top to the original position of the body, the ground drops 4 feet, Hicks said.

Then he explained that the murderer (on the theory that only one person carried the body) could have parked an automobile atop the hill and with little trouble dragged Corinna's body into the bushes below.

Body Exposed 48 Hours.

After an examination of Corinna's shoes earlier in the day, Hicks said he was "absolutely convinced" the body had been exposed to the weather 48 hours or more before it was discovered.

He said rust coatings on tacks in the heels of the shoes showed the victim's feet had been upturned and exposed to the elements for a long period.

In a test of his own, Hicks said, he took several shoe tacks and placed them in the open. Rost coatings appeared after 48 hours, he declared.

There were seven tacks in the heel of Corinna's right shoe and six in the left. Each showed, he said, that the woman had not been on her feet—or at least walking in the shoes—for a lengthy period.

He also examined the man's glove found near the Saddleback scene. He said it was of common make and widely sold in Washington. There were no markings on the interior to show that the owner wore rings, he added.

The War Situation in Africa

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Italian bombing planes yesterday resumed their activity, virtually wiping out an Ethiopian encampment near Amba Alaji in the north, and dropping deadly "eggs" on Dagah Bur, on the southern front. An Italian detachment captured Azbi after being ambushed by Ethiopians.

already had been passed. At 2:20 p. m. Labor Party headquarters said the government probably would receive a majority of from 200 to 250.

Labor's gains i early counting last night failed to hold up, and although the laborites gained more than 79 seats, net, they fell far short of threatening the Conservative sweep.

"It is better than anything we expected," exulted a party leader at Conservative headquarters. "There has been nothing like it since before teh war."

MacDonald Chief Victim.

Chief victim of the election was James Ramsay MacDonald, former labor prime minister who sits as Lord President of the Council in the Baldwin Coalition Government. MacDonald and his son, Malcolm, secretary for colonies, running on the National-Labor ticket, were defeated by Laborites. "Safe" constituencies wil be found for them and a couple of loyal party wheelhorses will resign in their favor so they may retain parliamentary status and continue in the cabinet.

MacDonald blamed injection of the unemployment and coal miners' wage increase issues into politics in his Seaham District for his defeat.

The two MacDonalds were the only members of the cabinet defeated. The Liberals lost their leader, Sir Herbert Samuel, and the fiery little Welshman, David Lloyd George, may regain influence in Parliament.

next to Nassibu in command of Harar Province, was wounded in battle and brought to the French Hospital in Harar.

His wounds, ascribed to reckless bravery in taking personal leadership of his troops, threw added responsibility on Nassibu.

Pin Hopes on Nassibu.

The Ethiopian high command hoped Nassibu could imbue the Somali tribsemen who make up the bulk of the Ogaden army with confidence and spirit for a dogged defense of Jijiga.

It was learned the "King of Kings," who talked with Nasibu just before the war lord departed for Jijiga, told him to engage in no attacks on the Italians for at least a month, but to remain on the defensive.

Nassibu, in turn, told Selassie he believed the Italians would be so weakened by sickness and lack of supplies within three months they would be at the mercy of the Ethiopian army.

"If we can resist that long, a small attack from our side will give us victory," he said.

Adequate Arms Lacking.

Army headquarters here was informed that 10,000 warriors under Dedjazmatch Amdi, governor of Arusi Province, had been able ot move only in small bodies from Jijiga to the front because of the lack of adequate arms.

These troops, mostly Amharics, were dispatched recently to Jijiga.

Dr. Robert W. Hockman, the American medical missionary, moved most of his medical unit from Daggah Bur to Jijiga, and reported wounded men were pouring into his hospital, requiring the services of another physicians.

(Other dispatches from Addis Ababa said Herbert Julian, the Harlem Negro, had dispatched his resignation from the Ethiopian army to the Emperor, on the ground his authority was not being respected.

(Two railway cars loaded down with ammunition arrived last night at Addis Ababa. Reports to the capital from the northern front said the Ethiopians were continuing sporadic raids, and one raiding party had destroyed an Italian bridge over the Mareb River, between Eritrea and Ethiopia.)

Survivors Flee Battle

By the Associated Press

Azbi, Ethiopia, Nov. 15.—Surviving warriors of an Ethiopian force which ambushed an Italian Danakil command and raked the desert fihters with machine gun fire, fled to the south today, leaving 55 dead.

Four Italian officers were wounded and 20 of their native troopers were slain as the howling Danakils, swinging heavy, curved swords, charged up hillsides under a rain of machine-gun bullets and engaged the enemy in hand-to-hand combat.

The battle lasted all day yesterday and finally the Ethiopians fled, presumably toward the main Ethiopian army, between Antalo and Amba Alaji, to avoid being crushed between the forces of Gen. Ruggiero Santini and the pursuing Danakils, part of Gen. Mariotti's command.

The two Italian forces, in a combined action, gained control of Arbi.

(Delayed dispatches from Makale said Italian war planes had bombed the enemy line of retreat south to Amba Alaji, wiping out an Ethiopian encampment outside Antalo. Antalo is midway between the Italian front lines at Makale and Amba Alaji, about 30 miles to the south.

(Another Makale dispatch stated Maj. Aldo Del Monte, previously reported killed in a skirmish at Gheralta, was said by Italian military authorities to have been only wounded.

(At Asmara, Eritrea, a newspaper warned dissatisfied workmen against unrest while waiting for transfer back to Italy. The newspaper said that "possibly riotous" persons and those impatient with waiting will be sent back in their proper turn and that Italan police and political authorities wlil be informed in advance to expect them.)

2 Virginia Towns Begin New School Buildings

Charlottesville Va., Nov. 15.—Work has begun on the new school buildings at Stony Point and Earlysville, in the northern part of the county. First ground was browen yesterday at both schools, with Supt. A. L. Bennett acting as master of ceremonies and chief speaker. Shovels of dirt were removed by the respective principals, Joel T. Kidd and A. D. Austin.

The building at Earlysville is being erected at a cost of $38,500. It will consist of principal's office, several classrooms, library and toilets. The Stony Point building, which will replace one destroyed by fire a year ago, will have one less room than the school at Earlysville.

R. H. Perry Resigns Charlottesville Post

Judge Archie D. Dabney, in accepting the resignation, allowed Perry six weeks in which to wind up the affairs of his office and named Deputy Sergt. John H. Jones as his successor. Perry is past president and an active member of the Young Men's Business Club.

Market Tip Given Shippers of Apples

Stamping Number of Fruit on Box Advised.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 15.—W. S. Campfield, of Staunton, Va., secretary of the Virginia Horticulture Society, returned recently from an annual tour of Southern and Midwest markets, discovered one of the main reasons for the sale of Northwestern apples through the South is that the approximate number of apples in each box is stamped upon the box.

This appeals to a large class of buyers, the fruit stands, the peddlers, and to many grocers, Campfield learned. He has appealed to apple growers here to stamp approximate count on their boxes.

Stamping minimum count on Shenandoah packed apples means but little extra, Campfield said. Buyers can estimate quickly and accurately how much he is paying and how much he must charge for each apple, under the count system and how many he can average into a 1-pound or 2-pound order.

Radio to Sell British Unit At $10,600,000

Morgan, Grenfell & Co. and Edward de Stein & Co. Will Pay Cash.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 15.—David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, today announced the company would sell its interest in the Electrical & Musical Industries, Ltd., in England for a sum in excess of $10,500,000.

"The board of directors of the Radio Corporation of America," a statement issued by Sarnoff said, "has decided to sell the 1,700,000 ordinary shares of the Electrical & Musical Industries, Ltds., in England now held by the R. C. A.

"These shares are being purchased by the British bankers, Morgan Grenfell & Co. and Edward De Stein & Co., of London.

"The price to be paid to R. C. A. for this block of shares has been agreed upon and is $10,220,000, payable in cash within three weeks in New York funds. The shares are being sold ex-dividend and the R. C. A. will therefore receive in addition to the above amount the sum of approximately $400,000 in dividends payable this month."

The sale was forecast recently when the British Treasury granted approval of the repurchase of the stock held by the American company.

Radio shares have exhibited considerable strength recently on the New York Stock Exchange coincident with reports that funds received by the corporation from the disposal of its interest in the British concern might be used to retire one of its outstanding preferred issues.

Living Costs Continue Rise In Major Items

Average Is 3% Above a Year Ago, 16.9% Under 1929.

New York, Nov. 15.—Living costs of wage-earners in the United States continued upward, rising 0.5 per cent from September to October, according to the National Industrial Conference Board. Higher prices were reported for each of the major groups of expenditures that compose the wage-earner's budget. Living costs in October of this year were 3.7 per cent above those of a year ago, 17.3 per cent than in April, 1933, the low point of the depression, but 16.9 per cent lower than in October, 1929.

Food advanced 0.5 per cent from September to October, which made them 7.7 per cent higher than a year ago and 37.6 per cent higher than in the spring of 1933 when they reached their low. They were, however, still 22.5 per cent under their level of October, 1929.

Rents continued on their steady upward trend, rising 0.8 per cent from September to October. Since October, 1934, rents have risen 9.5 per cent and since January, 1934, when they were lowest, they have advanced 15.9 per cent. They were, however, 21.1 per cent lower than in October, 1929.

Clothing advanced 0.1 per cent from September to October, but they were 4.0 per cent lower than in October, 1934. The advance in clothing prices since the low of April, 1933, is 22.6 per cent; the decline since October, 1929, 24.8 per cent.

Coal advanced 2.8 per cent, considerably more than might be expected on seasonal grounds, but they were 0.8 per cent lower than in October, 1934, and 8.1 per cent lower than in October, 1929.

Sundries for October were 0.3 per cent higher than that for September. The rise is due chiefly to an increase in the cost of admissions to motion picture theaters, information concerning which is obtained in October of each year. There were also slight increases in the prices of house furnishings. The cost of sundries in October was 0.6 per cent higher than in October, 1934, and 4.6 per cent higher than in April, 1933, but 5.8 per cent lower than in October, 1929.

The purchasing value of the dollar was 119.2 cents in October, compared with 119.8 cents in September, 123.6 cents in October, 1934, and 100 cents in 1923.

The Ticker Tape

Stocks Continue Advance Against Pressure of Profit-Taking; Francs Decline.

By Carlton A. Shively

A Special Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 15.—Stocks continued their remarkable advance, but with some decline in trading volume. Just the same the stock ticker fell behind the market now and then and the turnover was around 3,000,000 shares. Showing the usual tendency for activity to decrease on price weakness, the action of the market heartened its bullish followers and brokers reported, along with fair foreign buying, a mild increase in public, as distinguished from professional operations, interest. Bonds were higher and commodities moved forward. December wheat closed 1⅛ cents higher at 96⅜ cents a bushel.

While gains in stocks were sufficient to lift the general average, enough doubts as to the strength of the advanced positions came into the market to hold down the advance. Profit-taking at no time was sufficient to do more than check the rise, and it operated mainly on standard issues, which nevertheless mostly sold a little higher at one time or another. While uncertainty colored the industrial list the rails moved ahead with more confidence, and opportunities were seized to run in shorts on various industrial shares.

Chrysler Bid Up.

Chrysler, for instance, developed sudden buying power in early afternoon and in a few minutes was bid up 2 points. Another market taken by surprise was that for Atlas Tack, which was run up 4 points. Loew's jumped 2 points. American Can opened 2½ points higher. National Lead was given 3 more points. Strength was marked in the farm implements, stimulated by continued gains in farm products. Case climbed 5 points, Harvester more than 3 and Deere about 2.

Oil shares were harder. Standard of New Jersey crossed 50 for the first itme in several weeks. Continental made a new high and others were good in proportion. Steel got back to its high ground around 50 in the later trading. The best rails were Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Santa Fe, Union Pacific and the Van Swerringens.

Frances Decline.

Foreign exchanges moved more actively than usual. Sterling hardened upon the conservative victory in the general elections, but francs sagged badly, assuring a considerable further flow of gold to this country and foreshadowing another lift in the Bank of France's discount rate. With much of the rest of the world off the gold standard and enjoying at least temporary business improvement that has followed depreciation in their currencies, these recurrent sinking spells in the gold block exchange must be expected. France still is experiencing the pangs of deflation, and so long as that goes on the press for devaluation will come to the government from numerous sources.

Hongkong Dollars Rally.

Hongkong dollars, recently depressed almost within striking distance of the lowly Shanghai dollar, now steady at its newly pegged rate, rallied almost a cent further today on top of a sharp rise yesterday. According to foreign exchange dealers the recent drop in the Hongkong rate brought in buying orders from Chinamen throughout the country who felt that the rate was cheap enough to buy remittances to make purchases or to pay debts. For the first time in many months Japanese exchange was extremely weak, falling almost 15 points. The reaction lacked satisfying explanations.

Brokers' Loans.

Brokers' loans are climbing, if slowly, and the front page reports of four-million-share trading days are well calculated to bring in more public speculators. The past week's contributions to loans was $16,000,000, compared with $11,000,000 in the previous week. The upward trend shows which way the ball is going, but the actual volume of stock loans is too low to cause any concern. Loans to brokers and dealers in New York are about 25 per cent higher than a year ago, but security loans to others are still under a year ago. Only a little over three-quarters of a billion is out on loans to brokers and dealers here. Time was when some people thought brokers' loans of ten billions were not dangerously large.

Gold.

If bank loans are no higher than a year ago, the opposite is true of the basis on which loans are made. Monetary gold stock, as reported by the Federal Reserve Board, increased $33,000,000 this week, and at $9,747,000,000 is $1,717,000,000 larger than a year ago. The expansion in bank credit, if it were allowed,, that could be supported by nearly ten billions of gold (the amount this country will possess within a few months) makes the imagination dizzy. No wonder it is hard to find much worry over a bear stock market.

Baltimore & Ohio.

Next week the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will hold its annual meeting, at which the results for 1934 will be brought up and discussed. At the annual meeting Daniel Willard, the president, usually has some interesting things to say about the state of the nation and railroad prospects. Mr. Willard is leading the campaign for lower passenger fares in the East, calculated to stop the loss of traffic to the buses and to increase railroad earnings through the larger traffic that it is hoped the lower rates will draw.

In the Western districts alone, loading of livestock for the week ended November 9, totaled 15,434 cars, a decrease of 1,962 cars below the same week in 1934.

Forest products loading totaled 27,702 cars a decrease of 1,492 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 6,308 cars above the same week in 1934 and 3,712 cars above the same week in 1933.

Ore loading amounted to 15,797 cars, a decrease of 5,895 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 8,945 cars above the corresponding week in 1934 and 7,068 cars above the corresponding week in 1933.

Coke loading amounted to 6,715 cars, a decrease of 301 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 1,230 cars above the same week in 1934, and 917 cars above the same week in 1933.

All districts reported increases for the week of November 9 in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight compared not only with the corresponding week last year but also with the corresponding week in 1933.

Let Business Alone, Says Gen. Mills Head

New York, Nov. 15.—James F. Bell, chairman of General Mills, Inc., announced his opposition today to the holding of the conference of industry called by George L. Berry, co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, to be held at Washington on December 9. Mr. Bell said that what industry most needs today is complete freedom from Government interference and domination and a fair opportunity for private initiative, energy and genius to take advantage of the favorable elements in the industrial situation with a view to improving business and increasing employment.

U.S. Court Calls Van Sweringen Deal Unlawful

Contract With Mo. Pac. Is Disapproved by Judge Faris.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Nov. 15.—Judge Charles B. Faris, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals late today disapproved contracts by which the Missouri Pacific Railroad agreed in 1930 to buy terminal properties in Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo., from the Van Sweringen interests for approximately $20,000,000.

Judge Faris ruled the contracts should be disaffirmed by the trustees in bankruptcy operating the Missouri Pacific. The judge also advised the trustees to take legal steps to recover the money already paid under the contracts, $3,200,000.

Van Sweringen interests controlled the road before it entered bankruptcy and the terminal purchases were made from Terminal Shares, Inc., a Van Sweringen subsidiary.

Summarizing his opinion, Judge Faris held that the contracts were "improvident, unfair, unlawful and overreaching."

He said they constituted, in part, at least, acts outside the legal powers of a Missouri corporation and in contravention of the Calyton act. The Clayton act limits the dealings of one railroad corporation with another to $50,000 in any year, where there is an interlocking of officers or directors.

Marion C. Early, special master for the court who conducted hearings on the transaction in 1933 and 1934, recommended in a report to Judge Faris last February 14, a reduction of $6,000,000 in the purchase price.

The Capital Is Soon to See the Only Musical Comedy Taking to the Rails This Year

William Gaxton And Vic Moore Are in Offing

'Anything Goes' Is Title of Impending Work at National; Our Mail.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

I give you George H. Atkinson, one of the most erudite and most reliable of the theatrical stentors trumpeting their wares up and down the country. Mr. Atkinson:

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!

If our esteemed dramatic editor will go over his files for the past and current seasons he will find in all likelihood that but one musical comedy, namely "Roberta," visited his city last season, and there is only one, namely "Anything Goes," on the way for this season. It is a safe guess to say there will be no other, for there is none other in preparation and only one other playing in the United States; it is "Jubilee" which is in New York and will likely remain there until long after the snow has quit falling.

It was the privilege of this writer to exploit "Roberta" last season when he used in all truth the line, "The only musical comedy touring in North America." The same line may be used for "Anything Goes" as it has no competitor; thus, when the present season ends it may be recorded that only two musical comedies were sent on the road by their producers in two full years of 104 weeks.

In that time two or three musical revues and the musical play, "The Great Waltz," have bid for favor, but no other musical with a story, whereas a decade ago at least two score were being presented in the key cities.

It is a sad commentary—but the theater has become so impoverished the past five years that this line of entertainment has become almost extinct; producers have neither the funds nor the courage for such hazardous enterprise. Productions the size of "Roberta" or "Anything Goes" cost easily a quarter of a million of dollars to mount and open.

So what was formerly a commonplace, a show with 75 people and two or three baggage cars, is news today. It is news to say that "Anything Goes" has a cast of 83 people, 22 loads of scenery and will require four 70-foot baggage cars and as many sleepers to transport people from place to place.

It is also news to announce that "Anything Goes" ran just a full year of 52 weeks in New York, where it terminates its engagement Saturday, November 17. There are only two other attractions, "Personal Appearance" and "The Childrens' Hour," which have outstayed "Anything Goes" the season of 1934-35, and they are small cast plays whose combined salaries would scarcely pay for the transfer charges of the musical comedy.

"Roberta" was never a smash-hit in New York, but was very popular here and on tour, whereas "Anything Goes" was a smash-hit from the night of its opening. The former was so set up that it visited eight one-night stands after the Washington engagement, whereas, "Anything Goes" is so stupendous, having a revolving stage that requires the services of a numerous crew a full day to put in place, that only a few cities have theaters large enough to accommodate the equipment. Consequently "Anything Goes" will visit only Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Using a conventional phrase, the two stars of "Anything Goes" need no introduction here. That is just the reason they should be introduced. They are William Gaxton and Victor Moore, the erstwhile President Wintergreen and Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom of that classic "Of Thee I Sing." They are names to conjure with, names which have been before the Eastern public for nearly three years and almost continuously for that period. This will be the first time in years that they will have had an opportunity to go west of Pittsburgh.

In the other musical comedy, "Roberta," there was only one name of any importance and that was a name of a former generation, Fay Templeton; an old friend of Victor Moore who appeared with her in his salad days in "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway."

How rare are the theater people of this type, Fay Templeton, William Gaxton, Victor Moore; they are the aristocrats of musical comedy.

And how rare are the musical comedies of the "Anything Goes" class. Take it from one who knows, this one is a musical whirlwind.

It was a pretty swell job that J. Harold Murray turned in in Larry Schwab's self-made failure of "Venus in Silk," at the National not so many months ago—or maybe it was only weeks. Now here he comes again—not as an involved act, not as a personality in a long cast, but as himself in a single singing turn that will engage the interest of all Washington music lovers. J. Harold is a singer and that is what he will do to intrigue local attention. More steam or scream, as the case may be, to him.

So this from Mr. Collins, the distinguished mouthpiece of Washington's more or less brilliant interpreter of ballads, topical ditties and lusty roundelays:

Dear Sir: This is in reply to the following quotation from your column of Tuesday, November 8:

"Having had its overtures to Al Jolson, Helen Hayes and Kate Smith, all native Washingtonians, icily and inexplicably snubbed in the matter of assisting in the making of a short-reel screen subject to aid the local Community Chest drive, the committee in charge yesterday completed the desired film without their aid."

I haven't any idea whatever as to what attitude Mr. Jolson or Miss Hayes took in regard to this matter, but I do know what it's all about insofar as Kate Smith is concerned.

Was it deliberate that you neglected to mention that Kate Smith was in Chicago for two weeks at the time the "short" was to have been made? I don't think you'd be that unfair. On the other hand, if you were unaware of Kate's absence, Mr. Bell, then don't you think it would have been sportsmanlike to have first found out "why" before your vindictive comment? It seems to me that a good newspaperman always likes to get his facts straight before he takes sides. Or am I wrong?

Just for your information, on November 28, 1933, after Kate Smith had completed five shows at the Fox Theater in Washington, she appeared on Station WJSV at 11:30 p. m., Washington time, and gave very fully of her services for close to two hours, for the Washington Community Chest Fund. If memory serves me correctly the local Musicians Union were kind enough to grant Kate's band permission to play on that broadcast without the usual payment for standby musicians. However, did it ever dawn on you (or, being a dramatic editor, wouldn't you know) that musicians who actually play for a broadcast do not get paid off with strawberries? A two-hour broadcast, plus rehearsal time, usually runs into money. Radio Station WJSV donated time; the Washington Community Chest Fund officials donated time; now, who paid for the musicians? I don't think it was Nelson Bell. Who do you think it might have been? This is only one instance where Kate Smith has gone overboard in both time and money, and I'm more convinced than ever that with people like you around, she is being very silly. However, she says she is always happy to help when possible, but your attitude is far from helpful. Further on in your article you glorify the motion picture theater owners of Washington who provided Washington picture houses with a short subject to aid the Washington Community Chest drive at no cost to the committee. My, oh, my! Wasn't that delightful of them, or maybe the expense of making the film should have been borne by motion picture theater owners in Milwaukee.

Now, if you were important, your comment might have some effect—it might cause one like Kate Smith to become hurt and bitter, and, as a result, curtail her activities on behalf of charity. But, fortunately, you are very unimportant, so your pithy words don't matter. Kate will continue to do what she can for the needy and unfortunate. But I'm afraid you should be censored by Washingtonians because your slurs might be responsible for other entertainers refraining from any charitable co-operation whatsoever. After all, no matter what they did before would soon be forgotten by the likes of you who would become vindictive through your column.

Kate herself has not forgotten the nice things you said about her, nor will she forget this unjust comment. I write this as her manager.

We both hope the Community Chest Fund drive will be a success. And, despite what you say, Mr. Bell, Washington can always count on Kate Smith—and she always counts on her home town. Very truly yours, (Signed) TED COLLINS.

Okay, Ted, but that is an awful lot of wordage to waste on an unimportant fellow.

None-of-My-Business Note.

By the way, Collins, what percentage of Kate's income do you drag down, now?

Lecture on "Clara Schumann: Artist and Woman," by Mrs. Otto Torney Simon at the Arts Club of Washington; Margaret Tolson, pianist, assisting artist.

Members and guests of the Arts Club heard a quiet and loving tribute last night to one of the few great women in music. After Margaret Tolson had engagingly played a movement from Schumann's F sharp minor sonata as an atmospheric prelude, Mrs. Simon told the always moving story of the wonder-child who became a mature artist, gave up her career to marry a tone-poet, and after his death resumed the toilsome life of a concert pianist to support her children.

The simplicity and tenderness with which the lecturer spoke was more affecting than a dramatic relation would have been. Wisely for her purpose, Mrs. Simon did not stress the darker side of the picture, the weakness of Schumann which made him a counterfoil to the strength of Clara or the cyclothymic temperament which was his undoing. What she stressed were the lovable nature of the woman, the courage with which she faced her responsibilities and her infinite capacity for noble friendships.

Little was said, either, about the heartache of memories that Clara must have endured as she carried on for 40 years after Robert's death. Instead, there was the picture of the bravery, the patience and the enduring fidelity of a life to which honors and friendships could bring no compensation for an irreparable loss.

The Invisible Man Comes to Life

With Cary Grant and Gertrude Michael already accounted for in the cast of "The Last Outpost," opening today on the screen at the Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater, it seems fitting to add that Claude Rains, one of the most accomplished actors of stage or cinema, also is among those present. He is shown here in two slightly contrasting expressions. Choose your choice—he is a good actor in either.

Teachers' Oaths.

Comptroller McCarl's ruling sharpens the absurdity of the ambiguous legislative rider forbidding any person in the Washington school system to "teach" communism. But it does not juridically change the situation. Mr. McCarl has not attempted to say what the teaching of communism implies. He has simply issued orders that all teachers, officials and janitors comply with the law, over which he has not the slightest control. That was his plain duty and certainly none will criticize him for performing it.

Anybody who considers the McCarl ruling a bombshell has completely misinterpreted the action of the Board of Education. That body, of course, did not authorize the teaching of communism in the schools. Like Mr. McCarl, it was forbidden by law to do so. The board simply adopted as its policy an opinion by Corporation Counsel Prettyman, which clearly shows that incidental presentation of facts concerning communism, along with fascism, monarchy, or other political forms, does not constitute teaching of communism within the meaning of the statute. In no way does Mr. McCarl's request for proof that the law is being observed challenge the soundness of Mr. Prettyman's position.

Teachers will be required to sign a statement showing that during the period for which each pay check is drawn they did not "teach or advocate communism." Naturally, they will ask: "What does it mean to teach communism?" The only official answer has been given by the Corporation Counsel, as adopted by the District Commissioners and the Board of Education. In the light of that interpretation teachers may properly report that they have not "taught" communism, even though facts concerning that form of government may have been impartially discussed in their classes.

It is entirely probable, however, that the signing of these statements twice a month will have an intimidating effect upon a great many teachers. They will appear to be under suspicion. The true atmosphere of education will thus be tainted by a very good imitation of Nazi tactics.

For that demoralizing tendency neither Mr. McCarl, Mr. Prettyman nor the Board of Education will be responsible. The full blame runs back to Congress. This insult to the patriotism of Washington's teachers can not be entirely wiped out until the Legislature repeals a clause showing such offensive lack of faith in the strength of American institutions.

Belated Statement Of Policy.

The agitation created by the disclosure that small amounts of German steel have been purchased for two PWA construction projects has at last elicited a statement of policy from Secretary Ickes. Hereafter no foreign materials will be used on PWA projects without his approval. That will be granted only on proof of collusive bidding by American concerns, or in case quoted prices are unreasonably high. Barring these reservations—which are obviously essential to protect the Government against extortionate charges—President Green of the A. F. of L. is assured by Secretary Ickes that no money voted by Congress for relief purposes will be expended for foreign materials.

That, of course, is the rational policy to follow in carrying out a public works program designed to stimulate domestic industry and thus increase employment, especially in the heavy industries. Nevertheless, President Green's assumption that every dollar spent for German steel deprives some American worker of a dollar in wages is economic nonsense. As President Roosevelt and Prime Minister King said in their recent joint communication emphasizing the benefits of increased trade between Canada and the United States, "trade is but another name for increased employment." Specifically, foreign steel sold in the United States provides the seller with a means of purchasing American products and, therefore, indirectly gives employment to American workers.

However, these long-run considerations do not excuse the administrative bungling which is primarily responsible for the present furore. The haste with which Secretary Ickes disclaimed responsibility for the criticised contracts shows that the revelations were most unexpected and unwelcome. His charge that the Triborough Bridge Authority was trying "to pass the buck" appears to have been unjustified. Park Commissioner Moses has produced evidence to prove that the PWA contracts permitted contractors to purchase foreign material, when certain price differentials were overstepped. His contention has been tacitly admitted to be correct after a series of confused statements from Secretary Ickes which he betrayed surprising ignorance of the important questions at issue.

The wasteful dissipation of funds resulting from the absence of well-defined and consistent policies, especially in dealings involving both Federal and local authorities, has unquestionably deprived American workers of many more jobs than could possibly be lost by buying a small amount of foreign materials. It would be very unfortunate if this furore should distract attention from the fact that the amount of employment created by the PWA program depends primarily on the efficiency of its management.

The British Elections.

The results of the British general election closely follow informed forecasts, although the Conservatives have done rather better than was expected by certain prophets.

While the majority of the so-called National Government has been cut by some 200 seats it still retains a majority of about that number, giving Premier Baldwin complete control of the reins of government. Labor, which has picked up over 100 new seats in spite of its tactical disadvantage in this election, will prove a more hard-hitting Opposition than the representation figures indicate. Many of the more prominent members of this party are now back in Parliament, doubtless the more determined because of their long exile from the House of Commons.

Those familiar with the long and constructive history of the Liberal Party will regret its practical elimination as a result of Wednesday's voting. A mere handful of seats remain to carry on a great tradition. Another aspect of the instinctive desire of the British electorate for the two-party system is found in the elimination of the Communist Party as a political factor. Here, as in other aspects of the returns, however, close observers will notice that the popular vote bears little relation to the new distribution of seats. Only a relatively small majority of the total electorate has exhibited a preference for the National Government.

One of the most dramatice individual aspects of the election was the shattering defeat of Ramsay MacDonald by one of his former ministers in the first Labor Government. The widespread antagonism to MacDonald for "selling out" the Labor Party when the present National Government was formed has, if anything, increased with the passage of time.

Doubtless a seat in the House of Lords will be found for the former Premier but it is apparent that his active political career is at an end. The removal of MacDonald will facilitate the return of straight party government and it is to be expected that those elected under the labels of "National Labor" and "National Liberal" will either merge with the Conservative Party or gradualy disappear from the political scene. In personnel the new Parliament promises to be as exciting and dynamic as any of its predecessors, with Winston Churchill, Lloyd George, and "Jimmy" Maxton among the members calculated to prevent any apathy on the floor.

Immediate interest now centers in the attitude of the new government to the European crisis. There is no question that the British electorate has given a positive mandate for a continuation of the strong pro-League policy inaugurated last summer. The enormous majority of almost 25,000 given by his consistency to Anthony Eden, the Minister for League of Nations Affairs, is as indicative in this direction as the very narrow margin of victory for Sir John Simon, who as Foreign Minister pursued a very lukewarm attitude toward Geneva. Inauguration of drastic sanctions against Italy next week becomes a virtual certainty as a result of the British voting.

For the duration of the present European crisis the government of Premier Baldwin is unquestionably secure from any serious domestic attack. With the passage of the present emergency it will be forced to reckon increasingly with domestic problems in which the Labor Party, under revived leadership, will prove itself an effective opposition.

Many Englishmen with not socialistic leanings will welcome the restoration of Labor as a fighting minority party, knowing full well that the success of parliamentary government is to a large extent dependent upon an Opposition which can force the government to prove its case on every fundamental aspect of domestic policy.

Mr. Rockefeller's Stature.

As the churches struggle to keep pace with the shattering tempo of modern life, the constructive device of interdenominational co-operation comes increasingly to the fore. Rivalries of sect and dogma are on the wane. Within recent months here in Washington an assembly of representatives from many creeds, for discussion of their mutual problems, typified the new day.

Another mark of the times may now be seen in an announcement of John D. Rockefeller, jr. He has decided that his future donations to religious work will be confined to "specific projects, chiefly interdenominational in character." His influence, he has declared, will be directed toward an emphasis of "the basic truths common to all denominations, in lowering denominational barriers and in promoting effective co-operation among Christians of whatever creed."

The name of Rockefeller, which has in later years come to stand for generous but careful philanthropy in many fields, thus takes on added luster. The figure of the man whose unenviable responsibility it is to administer the embarrassingly vast fortune of his father stands forth even more clearly in the proportions of a broad-minded and clear-visioned citizen.

It is not every man who has the ability to concentrate upon the value of the project, regarding agencies working for its fulfillment from the sole viewpoint of their effectiveness as means to a noble end.

Thinking Beneath The Surface.

Secretary Wallace's admirable desire to grapple with basic national problems was well illustrated in his address before the Academy of Political Science on Thursday night. Nor is it necessary to agree with all the admittedly tentative conclusions advanced by him in order to recognize a sincere and thoughtful attempt to cut through the confusion of the times.

Unlike the average theorist of current vintage, Mr. Wallace does not urge a sudden metamorphosis of our economic system. Emphasizing the interdependence of the various economic groups—organized business, finance, labor and agriculture—he points to the need for a balanced program to promote the general welfare. Instead of permitting each major group of producers to utilize governmental powers independently for its own advantage, he would have their efforts co-ordinated into a policy of national rather than group welfare. No one is likely to dissent from his objective, outlined as follows:

> Our national economic goal must be increased balanced production of the things which people really need and want (1) at prices low enough so consumers can buy, but high enough so producers can keep on producing, and with income so distributed that no one is shut off from participation in consumption, except those who refuse to work; (2) with scrupulous regard for the conservation of our remaining natural resources; and (3) by means characteristic of our traditional democratic processes.

The perplexing question is how that objective can best be achieved. Mr. Wallace discards moral suasion as ineffective and dictatorship as undesirable. At the same time he points out that "we have no adequate machinery" for discovering the fully informed will of the people, uninfluenced by special interest propaganda, on problems of national importance. In short, the Secretary of Agriculture suggests that the simple machinery of geographical representation is inadequate for an age in which distance has become an unimportant factor, while functional as opposed to territorial interests are becoming ever more complicated.

Less than a year ago Mr. Wallace suggested that consideration of national economic issues be referred to the people through referendums by a non-partisan council. In response to widespread criticism, much of which he says was "well warranted," he has modified that suggestion. Now he proposes a "Council on the General Welfare" composed of four or five "eminent economic statesmen" with power to review legislation from the standard of national welfare in somewhat the same spirit as is followed by the Supreme Court in testing for constitutionality. If its advice did not prevail with the Administration the proposed council would be empowered to call a popular referendum, allowing ample time for full discussion of the issue involved. "The result of the referendum," Secretary Wallace said, "might then serve as a guide to the National Government for future policies and acts."

It is up to Mr. Wallace to explain, among other points, the seeming inconsistency between his faith in the ultimate referendum and his evident distrust of the initial judgment of the electorate on intricate economic issues. Further trimming and revision will be necessary before his plan can be lifted out of the realm of purely academic discussion. But it is highly encouraging to note that some members of the Cabinet are thinking courageously and profoundly about the grave issues underlying the existing patchwork of recovery measures.

Divas Or Divers?

A great deal has been said lately about the classical turn which the movies have taken. Dickens, Shakespeare and the Bible are discussed in terms of "boxoffice" now. Gnomes under grass and flitting fairies are but a matter of lighting and focusing to the technicians of Hollywood. The Red Sea, which once opened at Moses' command, finds its synthetic counterpart yielding to the persuasions of a DeMille.

However, the greatest motion-picture triumph since the advent of the talkies is Hollywood's invasion of opera. Sopranos, barytones and contraltos compose the modern gold rush to the West, and screen stars, in frightened self-defense, are taking vocal lessons. But if Hollywood is worried over what effect the opera stars will have on it, there is more cause for concern over the effect Hollywood is having on the opera stars. Judging by their poses in the rotogravure, it looks as though all are being transformed from birds to fish. Swarthout, Moore, Pons—one scarcely sees them any more except in bathing suits ranged along some sunken pool.

Perhaps the climax is reached in pictures of Marion Talley on a springboard. The shy, buxom Kansas farm girl, who cultivated rotundity as an aid to singing, now looks like a Sennett bathing beauty. Hollywood has taught opera stars a new meaning of "high seas," and spray to them is no longer just a throat ablution.

A sociologist declares that civilization is a form of insanity. But don't be alarmed. Even if this is true, we're only mildly insane.

History repeats itself, and so much of the time it's repeating what wasn't worth enacting in the first place.

But It's On The Level, Gents!

Letters To The Editor.

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation, and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

Caveat Emptor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In the issue of The Post of November 8, on page 7, were published two items of great interest and grave importance to the investing public. One item dealt with charges brought by Frank Parish, president of the Missouri Kansas Pipe Line Co., against certain utilities heads, referring to the market raid made on the Mo-Kan stock, a newcomer in the utilities field, after a refusal by the company to sell its valuable holdings to the Standard Oil Co., of New Jersey.

The raid, described in screaming, two-inch headlines in the Chicago papers, brought stunned unbelief to thousands of stockholders, who would not accept as possible the ruthless destruction of their investments by these industrial czars, whose market operations were not one whit less vicious than the "muscling in" methods of gangsters employing machine guns to "rub out" their competitors. Our Department of Justice spends millions of dollars to run down and bring to justice gangsters, who as public enemies number this and that, prey upon a relatively few. Are there no G-men, no Alcatraz, no Leavenworth for our real public enemies, who wantonly issue their orders of destruction from behind mahogany-topped desks?

The second item continued from the first page is a summary of a Federal judge's ruling on the utility holding companies act recently enacted by Congress for the protection of investors.

It brings to mind the cynical philosophy of the man who remarked that "he who steals a railroad tie is a thief, but he who steals the entire railroad is a great finanier" and an honored member of society. We have had Federal judges declare as unconstitutional the many acts passed by the present Congress for the benefit and protection of the common people. Are these appointed judges, rather than the duly elected Congress, to continue to have the life and death power of decision over measures that are of vital importance to the people of these United States? INVESTOR.

Washington, Nov. 10.

Misrepresentation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Although your policy is to encourage letter writing by your readers, or so you put it, you make selection for publication, and usually those that back up your position.

I notice in the controversy on "teaching" and "advocacy" of communism in the public schools of the District of Columbia you print several letters upholding our corporation counsel and our Board of Education to one opposed, and the latter only if it is weak in tone.

I very seldom write letters to the newspapers, and then only when a great issue is at stake. None of your correspondents except myself mentioned the palpable fact that the issue has in a measure been misrepresented by you and those who indorse your position.

It is not the question whether communism should be taught objectively or incidentally in our public schools, as our corporation counsel laboriously puts it, but whether a minor official or officials have the power to nullify an act of Congress, passed in due form and properly signed by our President.

As Andy puts it, "I am regusted" with a newspaper which is so unfair, one, as your records will show, I had bought for over a quarter of a century.

SAMUEL SALOMAN.

Washington, Nov. 14.

[Editor's Note: Our records show that, in the current year alone, letters from Mr. Saloman, generally disagreeing with our editorial policy, have been published on March 12, April 10, August 10, September 4, October 24 and November 1. The Post is scarcely to be blamed because, in the controversy referred to, support of correspondents for our stand had been enthusiastic and virtually unanimous.]

The Threat Of Fascism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Your editorial, "A Bad Joke," and the cartoon "The Big Parade" are very timely and hit the nail on the head. We should give more thought to the dangers of Fascism, for it is a far greater threat to our security than communism, which is only a loosely and poorly organized threat.

Fascism in this country will not likely attempt to seize the governmental machinery as in Europe, unless necessary to prevent communism but it will attempt to continue its domination of the Government in an invisible and most insidious manner. It wishes to continue to fool us into thinking we are governing ourselves. Big business with its huge financial reserves and the favors it can offer to venal officeholders, is always the "Sword of Damocles" that hangs over good government.

"The courageous stand for an untrammeled forum is our best guarantee of freedom. Our schools are best prepared to give us an intelligent and informed electorate. When a problem is clearly understood by the American people they usually vote right.

Moderation Impossible?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Your editorial in the November 12 issue, "Curbing Liquor Evils," seems to favor drinking in moderation to the strict prohibition of all alcoholic beverages.

In spite of John D. Rockefeller and Edsel Ford, and the strong organizations they represent, including college presidents and insurance officials, it is not possible to educate the mass of drinking people to drink moderately. This has been experimented with and tried for over 2,000 years, from our earliest historical records down, and failed. You cannot teach moderation in the use of habit forming-drugs.

Rome prohibited alcoholic beverages for 400 years, during which time she rose to power. Greece rose to greatness by education and the prohibition of alcohol under the laws of Lycurgus. We all know what became of these nations when they sank to drinking and debauchery.

CHARLES M. PIDGEON.

Washington, Nov. 12.

The Rush To The Trough.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir:

That was a hot one you handed the bonus seekers in "Patriotic Gyrations." Yes, consistency, is indeed a jewel.

The grain and swine plutocrats have lately voted by a heavy majority for continued bonus payments. All honor to the noble 15 per cent who voted not to receive the bonus. Consumers who pay this bonus were not allowed to vote. They would have voted 100 per cent against being robbed by the processing tax. And now the potato barons are howling for loot.

National recovery is impossible unless vast numbers of people stop wanting something for nothing, and the worst part about it is so many are ready to cheat, lie and virtually steal in order to get it.

Why not grant every citizen a fat pension and call it quits? This plan would at least be free from the blasting stigma of favoritism, payment could be made with promissory notes payable at the sand bank. L. G. HIGGINS

China's Principal Handicap.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Being no economist, one hesitates to make any comment on the letter of November 10, 1935, in this column under the name of "Economist." In "Economist's" letter there seems to be a concern for the danger that China runs of losing her silver subsequent to the new monetary reforms. As a student of current affairs I am sorry to say, however, that "Economist's" anxiety arises entirely from his or her knowledge of the China of yesterday rather than of the China of today.

"Economist" says that "the commercial transactions within China are and will continue to be settled by actual shipments of sycee (bar silver) until the private hoards are depleted through smuggling because of the low-pegged price of silver within China." Had "Economist" any knowledge of China today he would certainly not make such an erroneous statement as that "commercial transactions within China are and will continue to be settled by actual shipments of sycee." Indeed, sycee, if there is any still in existence, has long been discarded as a medium of exchange or a means of settlement within China. After the abolition of tael, moreover, since February, 1933, all transactions have been settled in legal tender silver dollars.

In connection with the problem of the improvement in Chinese business, as "Economist" has pointed out, the maintenance of order by the government is a prime necessity. So far so good. But in the latter part of the letter he seems to insinuate that China is still overruled by war lords and bandits. May I advance the theory that if there are any more war lords left in China they are not home-made bandits but are imported by force from outside. So far as bandits are concerned, there are two kinds. One is the Communist bandit, the other the "puppet" bandit. The Communists have been almost completely suppressed, but the "puppet" bandits are growing on account of support from "imported" war lords.

The conclusion, therefore, is that the real handicaps which the Chinese government must encounter in putting into effect its monetary reforms are "puppet" bandits and "imported" war lords. Now, may I say that Dr. Lin Lin may be too optimistic because he is a Chinese, but Mr. or Miss "Economist" has worried about nothing in reality.

The Post Impressionist

Who's Who—Anyhow?

Post Office, Saturday.

ALTHOUGH we pretend to no prophetic proficiency, we are willing to wager that English Julian Huxley will soon lose his reputation in Herr Hitler's German Reich and Mussolini's Italy. "Only yesterday" the Nazis and Fascists quoted him considerably. But times change.

* * *

Dr. Huxley is changing this time. Accompanied by two other intrepid investigators, he has conducted what he calls a "survey of race problems."

Alas, his survey reveals plenty of problems—but no race!

Take account of the individual first.

Take any individual.

Take yourself.

In the little matter of ancestry, you must, when you start to take account of yourself, take a good deal into account. If you are a Swiss, or anybody else able to trace your forebears backward "for as little as eight generations," you'll have to deal with ancestors to the tune of 510.

Well, Huxley & Co. contend, you have in you something—like all good savants, they call them "genes"—of every one of your ancestors—potentially, anyhow.

And each union along the line has made possible "fresh re-combinations."

With delicate realization of the peculiar difficulties in passing from units to coefficients, our English scientists have put this theory into test-tubes, cooked it over Bunsen-burners—and then applied it to those collections of human beings hereinbefore referred to as races.

And the result?

Mankind, says Dr. Huxley, has been migratory. Each migration, he says, has entailed interbreeding. Therefore, he says, the word "race" no longer possesses "any sharpness of meaning. It is hardly definable in scientific terms, except as an abstract concept which may, under certain conditions very different from those now prevalent, have been realized approximately in the past, and might, under certain other but equally different conditions, be realized in the distant future."

The survey is reported in a new book—"We Europeans"—A. C. Haddon being Dr. Huxley's chief collaborator, and A. M. Saunders contributing a somewhat supplementary chapter. If the work has, so far, been issued in this country, its American publishers have oddly neglected to send the Post-Impressionist a review-copy; but the British edition comes from the always peppery press of Jonathan Cope.

It is a small volume, yet a full one. It is—perhaps necessarily—a technical volume; yet it is, for a technical volume, astonishingly intelligible.

"But," says our gentle reader, "the premises, as you have sketched them, amount merely to the modern theory of biological inheritance."

Quite. This Column always knew. It had a highly intellectual audience.

However, how many moderns, outside the multitude of our readers, really understand all that doctrine's implications?

And how many, of the authority of Huxley & Co., have thought of applying those implications to Hitler's hormones, or genes, or whatever word you prefer?

Besides:

Were that unpleasant prodigy, Macaulay's schoolboy, not happily deceased, he could doubtless tell how biological inheritance is achieved through transmission of countless genes. But, until he read this book, he wouldn't be quite so brash concerning the acquisition of both mental and physical characteristics by means of environment, through education and nurture. Training, as the Huxley report goes on to repeat, is another race-leveller, closely co-operating with its fellow-toilers.

* * *

It may seem strange, in Rome, that biology should thus desert Darwin and maneuver toward Mendel. It must seem peculiar, in Berlin, that men like Dr. Huxley and his companions should differentiate so sharply—and so simply—between the Sage of the "Beagle" and the Abbot of Brunn.

Nevertheless, in such a frame of mind, and with such instruments as we indicated, those British scientists have proceeded to explore and expose. They have explored the countries of Europe. They have exposed "the pseudo-scientific theory of race which has been used to cover motives of social policy."

* * *

About all that the Fascists can do is to suppress, in Italy, the report's reflections upon the ancient Roman elements among Mussolini's legions. The only thing left for the Nazis is to place upon their merely national Index Expurgatorius this book's rejection of their Aryan claims.

"Unto the pure," St. Paul told St. Titus, "all things are pure." But that was another matter.

Doubtless today all races are racially pure—to the racially pure. But—asks Dr. Huxley, in effect—what race is?

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Barcelona, Nov. 15.

FIRST impressions may be deceptive, but in Barcelona your correspondent has the feeling of having dropped in on one of the neighbors during a lull in a serious family row.

Outwardly, the citizens seem gay and at peace with one another, but there are soldiers and policemen of half a dozen varieties in the streets, some carrying big automatic pistols in holsters or in their belts, others leaning on their muskets, others unarmed, strolling along the Ramblas, the grand promenade of the town, within siren call of their barracks in case of another political coup.

The regular army troops are mostly mere kids picked up off farms and streets to serve their time, and they struggle and shuffle in ill-fitting khaki uniforms, with none of the spruce smartness, as the English call it, of well-trained and disciplined soldiers. Just what they would do in the event of a shooting scrape is a case for conjecture, because they are a cross-section of the population and there is a great variety of political faith.

• • • •

THE extent of this variety may be judged from the fact that there are 80 radical newspapers, morning and evening, each sheet representing some shade of opinion or some politician.

As to whether they are subsidized or devoted to blackmail, there is again a variety of opinion. One proud young Catalonian, the head of a business house, insists that journalism here is a low and loathsome trade and that the working classes are a menace to good order and prosperity. He tells of employes who steal merchandise, and when fired for doing so threaten to have their employers killed by their union. He reaches into his hip pocket and pulls out a little automatic about three inches long. The pistol is known to American police as a Spaniard.

He also says something about hold-ups on highways in which motorists are robbed of their money and jewels and sometimes of their cars, and left stranded in the mountains. But whether he means that this state of affairs exists today or that it existed some time ago and was brought under control by civil guards, your correspondent is not entirely sure. At any rate, it's reminiscent of the United States, and provides a homely touch to a stranger in a strange land.

• • • •

A GERMAN who fought in the war to end war and who has lived in Barcelona for 15 years and seen all the shooting in the town during that time laughs at today's turbulences, and says the Spaniards are such rotten shots that the only danger is from stray bullets. When your correspondent remarked that this is all very confusing, the German said that confused expression represents good reporting because everything is confused.

The Catalonians speak a language of their own, which is news to your correspondent, who had always thought of Spain as a homogeneous country. Some of them want to secede from Spain. These secessionists claim that Catalonia pays heavy taxes to support Madrid and unproductive provinces populated by lazy, inferior people, and when a provincial governor is sent in from elsewhere by the central government in Madrid they regard this as a great outrage and feel sorry for themselves as a subjugated people awaiting their day of deliverance.

There are marks of shellfire and bullets on some buildings, but the damage could not have been serious, and one is advised merely to keep away from windows in the event of another temperamental display.

In Madrid your correspondent will be able to learn who is sore at whom and why, although that might be a waste of enterprise and not worth the tolls, because Spain seems to be merely a forgotten corner of the world stewing in her own juice, and the army division which simply vanished from the earth in the Moroccan disaster has scarcely been heard of in the United States, although the incident was a great tragedy to the Spanish people.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH poverty, or at least a very low scale of living, is apparent in the city, there is no begging, and this is explained by a local law, which seems to be strictly enforced, which sends beggars to jail and fines the man who gives alms. They were driven to that by a plague of diseased, blind and crippled beggars who flocked in from everywhere to plant their tatters and their frightful infirmities, and established a sort of post through which they exchanged trade secrets and methods. They would soap their eyes to make the lids red, throw their arms and legs out of joint or bandage their heads in dirty wrappings stained with red ink, all of which was done many years ago in New York at "Diamond Dan" O'Rourke's saloon on the Bowery, which served as the panhandlers' headquarters. There used to be a stack of crutches as big as a cord of wood in O'Rourke's saloon when his clients came home from a night's work on the streets to take their ease at their club.

These dispatches were not intended to be a travelogue, but on a trip of this kind you play the ball as it lies, so to speak, and Barcelona is not very hot just now.

New York Normalcy

Jimmy Walker And Tammany Come Back And Messrs. Flegenheimer, Krompier, Et. Al., Of "Numbers" And "Shylock" Fraternity Go Out.

By Ralph E. Renaud.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York.

THE past month may be said to have restored this city to normalcy. Jimmy Walker is back uttering tear-jerking please about how much he loves every cobblestone in its streets. This is fortunate, because cobblestones and brick-bats were about equally mixed with bouquets in the tributes hurled at the homecoming playboy. Tammany also won the city election hands down, which is a good indication that prosperity is more than halfway around the corner, because when times are flush John Q. Citizen unfailingly presents himself to Fourteenth street for his accustomed kick in the pants. And a nice, murderous gang war is raging in the underworld. This means that pickings are better and the metropolitan newspaper reader is not going to be denied his daily morning massacre.

For macabre details the present upheaval in gangdom seems to have similar guerilla engagements of the past somewhat faded. It is a large-scale operation involving both a change of leadership and an extension of territory. It began a few weeks ago with the murder in Newark, of Dutch Schultz, the last of the illicit beer-barons of the pre-repeal era and a multi-millionaire operator whose real name was Arthur Flegenheimer. Perhaps it even started a few days before that with the death of Louis ("Pretty") Amberg, whose mutilated body was found hacked to pieces in an automobile in Brooklyn. But Pretty was a small-timer compared to Dutch, who was really the Boss in New York, or at least, the front for a more shadowy boss in the political background.

Schultz was shot in the typical gang manner by a squad of machine gunners in the hideaway back room of an obscure cafe while he was going over his office accounts with the aid of several assistants and an adding machine. The Fingerman was a fellow in a green suit who stood outside in the bar and twirled a white horse watch charm in the right direction when the machine gunners entered with one ominous word to the bartender: "Dick!"

One of Schultz's henchmen was killed on the spot, one lingered a little while, and Schultz passed away in the hospital in the midst of stenographically recorded ravings which would have done credit to John McCullough at his maddest. Schultz, who was a comparatively well-read gangster, rambled through fields of picturesque profanity to discussions of communism and fascism, but never once did the names of his assailants pass his lips, or any clue to their identity.

• • • •

AT the very moment that Schultz was being rubbed out in Newark his chief lieutenant still remaining in New York, a man named Krompier, was mowed down in a Broadway barbar shop. The new gang was moving in with co-ordinated timing on all fronts. Krompier is still living—at least until he gets out of the hospital. A few days later a disheveled young man was found hanging from the lighting fixture of a gas-filled room in a dingy lodging house in Newark's Italian section. Fingerprints revealed him to be Al Stern, or Stein, a mad-dog killer who hired out to gang leaders and was hunted by the police for seven murders committed in the past year.

Surface indications suggested that Stern had committed suicide in an actasy of fear. But it was an odd thing that he should be in Newark when Dutch Schultz was killed and it was especially odd that Stern, a Jew, should be found in the Italian sector. It was odd, too, that Charles ("Lucky") Luciano and Johnny Torrio should have been seen in Newark the day before Schultz was shot. They are supposed to be the new bosses and the heirs to his business. By the time Schultz's body was cold they were revealed basking in the sun on the beach at Miami, suavely asseverating that they couldn't possibly account for the murderous warfare a thousand miles away in New York.

But because the bosses were in Miami didn't mean that the murders had stopped. Not at all. A couple of weeks later up in Rockland County (General Jim Farley's lost bailiwick) they turned up a body from beneath the floor of a vacant barn. It was pretty well hacked up and, having been buried in quicklime, was not recognizable. However, in the death agony, the victim had gripped his hands so tightly that the disintegrating alkali had not eaten away the skin there. His fingerprints revealed him as another of the Schultz lieutenants.

• • • •

SCHULTZ'S accounts, seized when he was shot, disclosed that he paid out about $9,000 a week to the New York police. Moreover, his numerous army of policy operators in the "numbers game" each carried a card indicating to the arresting officer that he would receive $10 for releasing his prisoner and presenting the card at a designated address. It must have been a fairly lucrative racket, and, of course, could not have been operated without the toleration and participation of the police.

But they say the immediate cause of Schultz's erasure was his operations in the "Shylock" racket. This, in its city-wide aspect, is only a recent development, and has been aided by governmental delays in the payment of the tiny wages which go to relief workers who must have cash on which to eat.

In its essence, the Shylock racket consists of charging 1,040 per cent interest a year on small loans. A man borrows $5, say, and is charged at the rate of $1 a week for the "accommodation." The advantage of the system is that the borrower is not involved in any legal process and will not have a garnishment slapped on his wages, with the possibility of losing his job. But the penalties are terrible. Each of these usurers maintains a squad of "enforcers," who wait for their victim outside his place of employment or home, hound him with threats of physical violence, and if he does not pay promptly beat him without mercy until he becomes a hospital case. It has been testified that one of these "enforcers" threatened his recalcitrant borrower that he would "comb his hair with an iron bar," and, moreover, did so.

• • • •

SOME of these cases, through the activity of Special Prosecutor Dewey, have recently been coming to court. In one case a small furrier over a year gave his shylock $183 for the use of $65, still owed $35 and was well beaten into the bargain—so badly beaten that he fled to Philadelphia to be safe from the thugs. In another case a poultry plucker paid $187 for a $35 loan, doesn't know how much he still owes and likewise took a beating. The usurers, it is a satisfaction to add, were convicted.

The Russell Sage Foundation estimates the "take" from this particular racket, or "book" as it is called, at somewhere around a million dollars a month, which almost puts it in a class with the policy racket. Schultz was extending his operations in this field of human misery and his success is said to have excited the envy of the Sicilian bosses. The results proved somewhat fatal, but murder begets murder in gangland, and no one doubts that there are many more notches to be cut in the handles of many more machine guns.

Meanwhile the police are "investigating."

Lying-Awake Thoughts

"BUT you must get so addled, reading all those books!" The bright young lady had said it straight out, that day.

Uh-huh. Right she was, drat her. Just try to cajole sleep nearer with forty-leven authors marching through your head. This feels like the Moscow plains after Napoleon's army had trudged by. There's even a little book on the topic—Charles Weschcke's "Overcoming Sleeplessness" (The Book Masters, St. Paul, Minn. $1). Prime, sensible stuff. If you get too interested in your thoughts, stop thinking, he says. Merci beaucoup, monsieur!

But what are you going to do when H. M. Tomlinson writes a book which makes you want to get up and shout? We've had as many antiwar books as there are dead leaves in the fall, yet "Mars His Idiot" (Harper, $2.50) stands clear among them, superb, unforgettable. It rings out like military band music and, with a voice to curl back-hairs, it despises same. War, he says, is muck, vomit, entrails in the mud, and nothing else but, and we fine citizens are responsible. We order it; yes, we do. Because, as nations, the human race permits itself deeds which it wouldn't be caught dead at as individuals. And so on and on, terribly true. If Mr. Tomlinson had written this in 1915, he would probably have been hanged by the neck until dead. He has a chance to speak now. But perhaps we may not be allowed to listen for long; the world is as moonstruck as ever. Good grief!

• • • •

SOMETHING Quieter? What could seem more innocuous than Dr. Hugh Cabot's discussion of the future medicine—"The Doctor's Bill" (Columbia U. Press $3). And then you consider the calm, well-informed exposition of this Senior Consulting Surgeon at the Mayo Clinic—how the poor can't pay for treatment; how the doctor can't live on his income; how the State can't handle the matter because of high taxes, bureaucratic difficulties, what not, galore—and there you are pondering an insoluble problem. Where's sleep then?

Or go through Prof. Roscoe L. Ashley's most commendable survey of modern dilemmas—"Our Contemporary Civilization" (Holt, $3.60). It's a college textbook of civics and sociology, but so mature and all-considering that if a generation could be raised on it this shaky old world might get somewhere. Oh, we're all very fine already?—bless you, but are you often in town? For the fact seems to be that we are in real transit "from one type of civilization, a rural, agricultural civilization, with its roots probably 7,000 years old, into something totally different." My sacred Aunt! I guess that'll keep a man awake an hour or two!

Well then, says our sleep doctor, Mr. Weschcke, think of pleasant things.

• • • •

NOW you're talking! For here are two books as pleasant as one could wish, both garners from the New Yorker. We ought to start a club, the Mention-the New-Yorker-in-Your-Will society, for if that magazine hasn't given us the platinum-plated edge of joy then I'm a Tartar. Just to think of the 300 poems, collected from ten years' publishing, in "The New Yorker Book of Verse" (Harcourt Brace, $2.50), is to feel very good to the marrow. Yes, though the ideological heavens fall! Do you know "The Jabberwock" translated into French?—"Le Jaseroque?" Do you know Ogden Nash's first poem?

"I sit in an office at 244 Madison avenue
And say to myself you have a responsible job, havenue?"

And would you relish once more some of the tastiest morsels from Dorothy Parker, E. B. White, Angela Cypher, Clarence Day, Morrie Ryskind, F. P. A., Joseph Auslander, Archibald MacLeish, Samuel Hoffenstein, Margaret Fishback, and 80 more of these sad or gleeful versifiers? By my sleepidom, it's a book worth its weight in gold.

And as for comic drawings, consider "The Seventh New Yorker Album" (Random House, $2.50). They skipped last year, so they've gathered in the brightest sheaves from 24 months. Fat, full, and gorgeously funny, the volume holds the cream of the crop from 46 artists. Steig's panel-series of the fat lady examining herself in the mirror; the magical pen-and-ink work of Alain and George Price; Helen Hockinson's dowagers; Barlow's subtlety with children; Arno and Gluyas Williams and Carl Rose—but if I go into details I'd never stop.

Gold medal for the funniest, though, goes to James Thurber. The sketch: a lady sitting in her parlor chair, dropping her book in astonishment at the sight of a gowned, turbaned, masked figure charging at her with a spear. The legend: "George! If that's you I'll never forgive you!"

How am I doing after these pleasantries? Z-z-z-z-z.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Stratosphere Balloon Interview.

"Hello. Do you hear me?"

"About 24,000 feet, I think."

"Do you know who this is speaking?"

"We're fine. How are you?"

"No; I asked how things were going up there."

"Not that we know of. What did you say?"

• • • •

(Considerable static interfered with the clarity of the exchange at this point.—Ed.)

"How high up are you now?"

"Who?"

"I say how high up are you now?"

"Very nicely. We fixed it with cement."

"You fixed what with cement."

"Yes. That's all we had with us. Who is this speaking?"

"What?"

"I say who is this speaking?"

"With ordinary cement, you say?"

"Yes, it was quite a rip."

"Are you having any trouble up there?"

"Oh, about 36,000 feet now. The sky is a deep blue."

"Deep who?"

"Cement."

"Oh!"

• • • •

"Are you getting my voice clearly up there?"

"We're very glad to do it."

"I can hear you very plainly, too."

"Oh, no. No trouble at all. It was just a rip. We fixed it."

"You fixed it?"

"Yes, we patched it."

"How long was the rip?"

"About 64,000 feet, our instruments show."

"That's with cement?"

"Yes."

• • • •

"Hello . . . Hello."

"Do you hear me now, captain?"

"How many?"

"I say, did you patch it?"

"Yes. It's a great sensation. Nearing 70,000 feet now."

"How long has it taken you to get that high?"

"You'll have to talk louder. What?"

"Cement."

"Positively."

"Who?"

Winter.

Now come the chills,
The cold pertaters,
The frozen pipes,
And fancy skaters.

Optimist: A man who is still waiting for an answer to a chain letter.

That stratosphere balloon went 74,000 feet into the air, but found no trace of Judge Crater, Jimmy Walker's dog or anybody who knew who shot Dutch Schultz.

When the President enters the room now the band plays "Inhale to the Chief" as a result of those breathing spell orders.

You Know How It Is.

Frau Hettie Dyhrenfurth, holder of the women's record for mountain climbing, says she doesn't like climbing mountains in the least. You know how it is; some day somebody says, "Well, what do you say to scaling the Matterhorn?" You say, "All right."

"How about another?" asks your friend, looking off at the charming array of peaks. You give in . . . the first thing you know, you're an addict.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

Nov. 15.—London—Satisfied with the election results, dealers, assisted by buyers who came in later, marked up prices on the stock exchange today. Advances were prominent in industrials, armament shares, and government stocks, the war loan advancing about one point. Profit-taking later caused prices to ease, but net gains were registered for the day. Transatlantic issues and oil shares were cheerful on favorable Wall street news. The market closed firm.

Paris—Prices on the bourse today responded to the defensive measures invoked by the Bank of France and the advance in Wall street Thursday. Rentes, bank shares, industrials, and international issues were higher. The closing was firm.

Berlin—With bonds favored, prices on the boerse continued their upward swing and closed higher.

Should America Go to WAR to STOP WAR?

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

IN Great Britain, a few months ago, returns in a poll of public opinion showed that Englishmen at that time were eight or nine to one in favor of co-operating with other nations to prevent war. The vote on this "Peace Ballot" was three to one in favor of using military measures if necessary. England's foreign policy since then has been based largely on the sentiment so unmistakably expressed by the British people.

Now, the United States has been given an opportunity to vote on the same questions. In view of the present widespread belief in the likelihood of a second world war, you will be interested in comparing American with British opinion on this important issue.

• • • •

In this poll, like all others conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion, mail ballots and personal interviewers were used to ascertain the sentiment of a representative cross-section of American voters. Ballots went into every State in proportion to population. Ballots and interviews were distributed among persons on different economic levels in proportion to the numerical strength of the various groups. Dirt farmers . . . white collar workers . . . income tax payers . . . persons on relief . . . all are represented faithfully in the returns.

A report showing impartially and accurately what America thinks about co-operation with other nations to prevent war—with a sectional break-down to show differences of opinion between sea-coast and inland sections of the country—will be published in the fifth edition of the National Weekly Poll of Public Opinion

Favorite Old-Fashioned Soups Make Palatable and Inexpensive Luncheon Dishes

Soups Popular Years Ago Fine For Luncheon

Black Bean and Cream of Onion and Potato Are Among the Best.

By Dorothea Duncan.

WHEN you are considering nutritious and palatable luncheon dishes that are inexpensive as well as easy to prepare, remember the many delicious soups that were popular a decade ago.

Black bean soup served with thin slices of lemon and hard cooked eggs has a superior flavor that will intrigue the most demanding palate. Cream of onion and potato soup, with a fine sprinkling of fresh green parsley, can be a rare delicacy if properly prepared. Corn or fish chowder served with crackers or pilot biscuits make a delectable hot savory dish for a crisp autumn or cold winter day. Then there is a milk rice soup spiced with a sprinkling of powdered cinnamon and dotted with butter. It is so simple to prepare that it can hardly be called a recipe, but the results produce a delicious, delicate flavored soup that will be enjoyed by every member of the family.

To make enough of the milk rice soup for two generous portions use the following directions: Cook one-quarter cup white rice in a generous amount of boiling water. Add one-half teaspoon of salt to the water as it cooks. The rice should never become thick and sticky, but should have enough water to keep the separate kernels bubbling up and down. When the rice is tender and flaky remove it from the fire. Save one-half cup of the rice water. Then wash the rice free from starch with a surging stream of cold water. Add one cup of milk and one-half cup of thin cream to the rice water. Heat until just below the boiling point and add the rice. Season to taste with sugar. Just before serving add two tablespoons of butter. Pour into large flat bowls and sprinkle with cinnamon. Serve at once.

Recipes for some of the above mentioned soups follow.

Black Bean Soup.

1 cup black beans
1½ quarts water
1 onion
1 tablespoon fat for sauteing
2 stalks celery
1 lemon
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
2 hard cooked eggs
½ teaspoon mustard
pepper, salt, paprika.

Soak the beans overnight. Next morning drain them and cover with cold water. Add sliced onion, which has been browned in the fat, also stalks of celery broken into inch pieces. Simmer until beans are soft, adding more water from time to time. Press through a sieve, again bring to the boiling point, and then add seasoning of mustard, pepper, salt and paprika to taste. Bind with a roux of butter and flour to prevent the soup from separating. Cut the eggs and lemon in thin slices, and add these to the strained soup just before serving.

To prepare a roux: Mix the flour and butter in the given proportions. First melt the butter, let it bubble but do not brown. Stir in the flour to form a smooth paste. Add to the hot mixture stirring until smooth.

Cream of Onion and Potato Soup.

3 cups scalded milk
1 cup potato water
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
4 medium potatoes
4 onions
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
salt and pepper.

Boil the potatoes and onions together, until tender. Drain. Save the water and rub the vegetables through a coarse strainer. Make a white sauce of the liquid, flour and fat and combine with the potato and onion pulp. Season with chopped parsley, salt and pepper. Beat with an egg beater and serve with croutons.

Chocolate Keeps Easily.

Chocolate as bought on the market in its sweetened or unsweetened form is made from cocoa beans ground under pressure. If the chocolate is stored in a warm room the fat known as cocoa butter will melt and come to the surface and when it hardens will give the chocolate a gray look, because the fat is perfectly white. The cake of chocolate, however, is as good to use as ever.

Grease the Kettle.

To keep rice or macaroni from boiling over, grease the inside of the kettle three or four inches from the top. The water will not boil over.

Stuffed Apples Popular as Meat Accompaniment

These corel apples have been stuffed with marshmallows, raisins and dates and then baked. Each is being capped with a marshmallow and they will then be returned to the oven for just a minute to bring the capping to a beautiful golden brown.

Success of Baked Apples, Old Favorite Dish, Depends Upon Kind of Fruit Used and Cooking

Brown Sugar, Honey and Maple Syrup Best Flavorings.

The old favorite baked apples are good to serve for everyday meals and for guests. They may be tender, fat and flavorsome, or they may be tough and tasteless. That all depends upon the kind of apples you select and the way you cook them.

Brown sugar, honey and maple syrup are three flavorings that blend beautifully with apples. However, each when used as a sweetening does have a tendency to produce a baked apple the flavor of which is very definitely characterized by the particular taste of the sweetening employed. This in no way detracts from the palatability of the apples and for some persons heightens the fruit's appeal.

If you prefer your baked apples merely enhanced by a sweetening that will not in the least change the characteristic apple flavor try sweetening them with marshmallows. Marshmallows will blend with the fruit, giving it an enhanced but unchanged flavor.

To sweeten a pan of baked apples core the fruit as usual with an apple corer, then stuff a marshmallow or pieces of cut marshmallow into the cavity. Cover the pan and bake. The apples should not be baked in too hot an oven, lest the skins scorch or become tough. A temperature between 300 and 400 degrees F. is satisfactory.

Baked Apples.

Often a pan of baked apples is prepared at the same time as an oven dinner consisting of roast meat, scalloped potatoes, baked beets or carrots and a bread pudding. Other times, a pan of apples may be baked together with a custard which requires a slower oven or 275 degrees F. A small roast or Swiss steak, baked in a moderate oven, together with baked apples, makes a fine hot dinner on a cold day.

Apples do not bake well in the same oven as pastry, and they should not be put in the oven with cake because they give off steam and make the atmosphere rather moist, which is not desirable for a cake, pastry or bread.

Everyone knows the conventional ways of preparing apples for the oven. Why not try something different next time? For instance, remove strips of the apple peeling, from stem to blossom end. This allows the apple to expand, without bursting. Four of such strips removed make the apple appear extremely attractive. Another idea is to remove a band of the peeling from around the center of the apple, or two such bands. For variety, try trimming the peel from one or both ends of the apple around the hole from which the core is removed. The apple may be thoroughly pricked with a fork in order to help it retain its shape during baking.

May Lose Their Shape.

Apples will lose their shape entirely if the oven is too hot, if they are baked too long, or if the wrong kind of apple is selected. Never select a soft or mealy apple for baking, for the pulp will be too quickly reduced to a sauce-like consistency. A firm, crisp apple with a juicy pulp and rather tart flavor is well-suited to baking. If baked at the proper temperature, it will retain its contour and be tender and flavorsome.

Stuffed baked apples make a delicious dessert as well as a splendid accompaniment for roast fowl or pork. Apples stuffed with sausage meat and baked in the otherwise customary way make a delightful center platter attraction around which to plan a grouping of hot vegetables.

A stuffing for baked apples may be prepared, using the following ingredients.

1 cup of chopped or sliced dates
1 cup seeded or seedless raisins
1 cup quartered marshmallows
Few grains salt
Cored apples.

Cut the marshmallows in quarters with scissors dipped in cold water. Mix them with the dried fruits. Add chopped nuts if desired and a few grains of salt. Stuff cored apples with this mixture and arrange them in a buttered casserole. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until the apples are tender.

Christmas Cookies Subject for Contest

There must be a great many housewives who adhere to the old-fashioned custom of stocking the pantry shelves with Christmas cookies made in their own kitchens a few weeks before the festive season.

With this thought in mind Christmas cookies has been selected as the subject for next week's Post recipe contest. This contest will bring to a close the series of six contests conducted by The Post for readers of the food page.

Besides the five weekly prizes of $1 each, three grand awards will be made at the close of this contest. All prize-winning recipes in the current series of contests will be submitted for the final judging to determine the winners of the grand prizes—a hand-carved wooden salad bowl with matching serving fork and spoon, a combination cake server and box, smartly styled of non-tarnishing chromium and white porcelain, and a Dutch oven.

Send your favorite Christmas cookie recipe to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post. Be sure to mail it in time to reach this office not later than next Saturday morning.

Marshmallows May Be Used as an Alternate Sweetening.

Cranberry Catsup Is Good With Pork

Take advantage of the wealth of cranberries found in the markets. At a very little cost and only a small effort you can make a delicious cranberry catsup that will add distinction to next summer's cold roast pork as well as this winter's baked fresh ham and roast loin of pork. Use the following recipe.

Cranberry Catchup.

2½ pounds cranberries
Vinegar
2 2-3 cups sugar
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves

Wash and pick over the cranberries. Cover them with vinegar and cook until they burst. Force through a sieve. Add the other ingredients, return the mixture to the fire and simmer until thick. Seal in clean, hot jars.

Careful Study of the Directions In Baking Powder Use Advised

Varieties Have Much in Common, but in Use They Are Not Interchangeable; Recipe for Nun's Cake, Old-Fashioned Cream Given.

IN THE MIDDLE AGES a nun in the Abbey of Whitby found that continual beating of eggs and batter filled the mixture with air bubbles and produced a cake the like of which had never been known before. What rejoicing among medeival good wives there must have been when the news about "Nun's Cake" became noised about. For this was the beginning of cake as we know it.

The next step in leavening lore was the addition of sour milk and soda, soda and molasses or soda and cream of tartar, all of which created those precious air spaces in the batter, which make cakes fluffy and light.

Not until 1850 did the leavening agent we all use so much, baking powder, appear, and it was much later even that baking powder was manufactured commercially. Directions for use which are given on every can, were not found accidentally. Food chemists labored long over formulas. Next, experts in home economics baked and tested thousands of cakes to make sure directions were correct for whichever type of baking powder the can contained.

In this connection it is interesting to note that there are several types, each with its somewhat technical characteristics. However, to the practical and busy housewife the important thing to know is that they all have one thing in common and that is ability to generate approximately the same amount of carbon dioxide gas, which is what makes the cake light.

Have Much in Common.

But here is a paradox. Baking powders have much in common, but in use they are not interchangeable. This fact need not worry or concern cooks if they will remember a few simple rules for correct and successful baking powder practices.

First, always use the amount recommended on the can. This proportion has been worked out as the best for that particular brand. Second, measure carefully, because an excess of any type of leavening agent gives undesirable results. A level teaspoon means that you must level it. One manufacturer has materially aided the housewife by leaving a small piece of cardboard across the opening of the can, which levels the spoon. Since the proof of the pudding, which in this case is the cake, always is in the eating, make the following cakes with attention to your baking powder rules. You will be surprised at the unusual quality.

Nun's Cake.

3 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
3 egg yolks, unbeaten
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add flavoring. Turn into greased tube pan, lined with greased paper, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 1 hour and 15 minutes, or until done.

Old-Fashioned Cream Cake.

1½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, unbeaten
Heavy cream
1 cup sugar

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Two eggs in cup, add enough cream to fill cup. Beat with rotary egg beater, adding sugar, then flour. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 25 minutes. Spread whipped cream between layers and on top of cake.

Read the Directions.

The amount of baking powder is determined by the amount of flour and the number of eggs used. Two teaspoons (level) are required of most baking powders to leaven one cup of flour with or without the addition of one egg. When more eggs are used the baking powder is lessened in proportion to ½ teaspoon for each egg after the first egg.

As already mentioned, however, some baking powders vary and for that reason it is always best to read the directions on the can. These directions will tell you how many teaspoons of this particular baking powder it will take to leaven one cup of flour. If your recipe calls for more or less baking powder than is recommended by the directions on the can, regulate it, accordingly to the above directions. For instance, a recipe which calls for 2 cups of flour and 4 teaspoons of baking powder may require but 2 teaspoons of baking powder if directions on the package of your particular brand definitely states that one teaspoon of this baking powder will leaven 1 cup of flour.

A Hint on Spinach.

Fresh spinach should not be cooked in water. The water that clings to the leaves after washing is sufficient to provide steam enough to cook the spinach and keep it from burning.

Best Pan for Fish.

Fish is best broiled in a shallow, oiled pan. Because of its delicate texture it is less apt to break when turned on a flat pan than on a wire broiler. Use a wide spatula for turning.

Chic Costumes For Dogs on Display Here

Jackets of Soft Oil Silk, Proof Against Weather, Are Featured.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

IT LOOKS like a gay season in dogdom this year to judge by the chic costumes designers are turning out for the Bow-wows and Fidos.

One large local store has a department set aside for devotees of the canine group. Here you'll find a lavish display of delicacies for Woof-Woof's dinner, leashes for his stroll, sweaters for a chilly day, beds for his night's slumbers and jackets for rainy weather.

It's these jackets that strike the newest canine fashion note. They're made of a soft oil silk that's proof against rain, snow or sleet. They come in all colors and even cheery plaids. Guaranteed to be becoming!

The sweaters are smarter than ever. Some of them, with their turned back turtle necks, are bound to give even "Itsy Bitsy" poodle a sort of Bowery air. They are in a variety of knit patterns and in bright colors and combinations.

The last word in leashes are those in bright plaids. Colors come in matching designs.

Dog blankets (and only $1) are made up especially for the pets that might catch cold in a chilly draft. The beds are luxurious. Some of them made of a lightweight bamboo weave are available in 21, 23 and 25-inch sizes, and sell for $1.95. Those easily portable baskets, higher on one side than the other, and padded with a washable oil cloth cushion, are especially nice.

• • • •

Feline Department Also.

But kitty has to come into the picture, too! And so this canine department goes slightly feline with the display of some fascinating rubber mice that squeak provocatively. Also there is a tonic recommended for giving kitty a healthy appetite.

Rainy Weather Coats.

COLLEGE girls who must be prepared to cross the campus in cold and rainy weather, sportswomen who will brave rain, snow, or sleet for out-of-doors fun, are sure to find just the coat they want in a local store. It's a short leather coat that comes in two styles. One has a Clark Gable back and a woolen lining that buttons in. The other, with a plain back has a lining that zips in. Colors—green, brown and London tan.

Up-to-date Collars.

BEAR IN MIND that last year's coat or the coat of several years ago might be made to look brand new with an up-to-date collar. But—so many people think a new coat collar will cost as much as a coat itself. On the contrary See those shown in the notions section of a downtown store. All kinds, and they range in price from $3.98 to $5.95. On another table there are some on sale. These are reduced from $3 to $2.50. All of them excellent values too, and in fox, raccoon, and a variety of furs.

Book-ends for $1.

IF YOU HAVE a lot of odd books around the house and no available space in the book shelves, then why not sacrifice a dollar to a pair of attractive book-ends?

You'll find some selling for this modest price in a conveniently located downtown store. They come in white and gold and red, are made of a heavy metal and may be had in a variety of styles.

Compact Holds Cigarettes.

THERE'S NO NEED any longer of cluttering your bag with both compact and cigarette case. A local store is featuring an ingenious device which holds cigarettes on one side, and is a compact on the other.

It comes in two styles, one plain for everyday and the other jeweled for evening.

Twentieth Century Children Escape Moralizers but Miss Literary Thrills of the Past

By Malvina Lindsay.
Woman's Page Editor.

HOW MUCH BRIGHTER the world is for children today than a century ago is emphasized by the current exhibition of juvenile books in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress. No whimsical Mickey Mouses, no rollicking Little Pigs, no dimpled-kneed boys and girls disport themselves over the pages of these drab little volumes. The books bear such titles as "Virtue and Vice, or the History of Charlie Careful and Harry Heedless," "Little Emma and Her Father, or the Effects of Pride" (Little Emma being kidnaped by gipsies for her pertness) and "The Sister's Gift, or the Naughty Boy Reformed."

• • • •

Many of the volumes attempting to "allure children to virtue" were issued by the Sunday School Union which began publishing In Philadelphia in 1824 and which established the moral tale on such a firm basis that it continued to plague children well into the twentieth century.

• • • •

As one who has some harrowing memories of the later goody-goody era in juvenile reading (particularly a dissertation in a country school reader entitled "What I Cannot Tell My Mother Is Not Fit for Me to Know") I rejoice that the children of today have escaped the moralizers. And yet despite this I believe modern children in their happy, scientifically planned world of make believe are missing some of the literary thrills of their youthful predecessors.

FOR ONE THING they are missing Elsie Dinsmore. Think of growing up without having wept for Elsie or quailed at Horace. And think of having missed the manly little heroes of the Alger series. Think of going through life without cherishing the furtive hope that virtue is always rewarded and that the shabby stranger to whom you once returned a lost dime may leave you a legacy.

• • • •

But worst of all, think of never having read your first novel surreptitiously! That, to me, was the greatest literary adventure of my life. For alas, unlike most adults of today, I did not when I began browsing in the family book shelves reach after the ornately bound Dante's Inferno "nor the sober red-backed Carlyle's History of the French Revolution." No indeed. I reached directly after a novel, chiefly because I had been told that a little girl should not read such things.

• • • •

I should like to report that I became engrossed in "Tom Jones." But I did not. I hastily discarded it for "The First Violin." And thereupon fell madly, hopelessly and permanently in love with the noble-browed Eugen Courvosier. I suppose any other sentimental novel would have supplied an equal thrill. The background of the adventure gave it its significance.

HOWEVER that may be, I was provided with that priceless experience, a literary crush. It is one that has survived the test of time. "The First Violin," has remained secretly my favorite fiction—even though on literary questionnaires I invariably list "War and Peace." I never reopen it without experiencing a warm sense of romance, a stirring of adolescent sentimentality. As E. M. Forster once said of "The Swiss Family Robinson," it will probably be the companion of my old age when I have ceased to care what the Book of the Month Club publishes.

• • • •

Nearly every adult has a similar experience with a book or books. But such adventures usually grow out of solitary and preferably secret exploration. Moreover, they do not come to those who know a plethora of bright jacketed volumes but who must make the most out of a few ancient and musty standbys.

• • • •

No doubt today committees versed in graphs and complexes chose the first novels of the young. And that is right just as the abolition of the preachments and the moral tales was right. But progress always exacts its toll. I cannot help regretting that the children of today do not know any secret literary thrills behind their geographies, that they do not know the adventure of being Magellans on uncharted seas of books.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: You have a great variety of problems presented and I think how brave you are to tackle those awfully stiff ones. It must be hard to tell which way to jump. Only the good Lord could settle some of those tangles and it almost makes me laugh when you so nobly strive to adjust matters when you must know there is no earthly hope.

• • • •

My problem is entirely different. It's something in the nature of a conundrum and may not be worth your while. Here it is: for some time I have been answering advertisements for secretary, stenographer and typist. I write a letter, stating my education and experience, which includes high school, seminary, and business school, and several years' experience as secretary to a high-type business man. Furthermore, I demonstrate good penmanship in these letters but I have never received a single response.

• • • •

Naturally I don't state in such letters that I don't use rouge, lipstick, chewing gum, or cigarettes; nor that I possess good looks, personality, style, poise and breeding, which after all is a matter of opinion, and could only be determined to an employer's satisfaction by giving the would-be employe a trial. Perhaps I don't possess these qualities, but who can say, unless a trial is given?

One Woman's Opinion.

DEAR MISS FAIR: It has not been my experience that the average business man advertises for secretary, stenographer or typist primarily in the hope of securing good company in the office. If he is conducting a successful business, he is not at such a loss for congenial companionship. Neither has it been my observation that he is so much concerned with a woman employe's use of rouge, lipstick, chewing gum or cigarettes as he is in her professional efficiency. Whether the employe he seeks is man or woman, I believe he considers personality, style, poise and breeding as necessary as technical proficiency.

• • • •

Furthermore, the business man whose work entails the services of secretary, stenographer or typist as a rule maintains the bulk of his professional contacts by letter and develops in consequence an almost psychic faculty for judging unknowns by the letters they write.

• • • •

Since you are in the market for a job and have turned to the advertising columns in search of one, you should concern yourself with devising a letter which is a masterpiece of self-salesmanship. Make it brief, business-like and to the point. Don't waste words, and consult the dictionary for the right word. Every superfluous word is a waste of your prospective employer's time and a trial to his patience.

• • • •

Such a letter might consist of two pages of typing. The first page should be the letter proper, submitting your application, stating your qualifications briefly, listing your best references and giving your age, name, address and telephone number. On the second sheet you may present, in chronological order, your educational preparation, your actual working experience and a complete list of references. In the letter you may call attention to the attached sheet as giving complete information concerning your professional equipment. If your letter commands attention the second sheet will be read. And the letter is far more likely to be read through to the end if it seems brief at first glance.

Tea Drinking Is a Fine Art in Japan; Women Spend Years Studying Etiquette

An artist's conception of a hostess beating tea with a bamboo whisk (left). This is part of the unique Tea Ceremony, which Japanese women study for years to master, according to Miss Mattie Maddux (right), who recently returned from the Orient.

Miss Mattie Maddux, Back After Extended Stay in Orient, Tells of Experiences Living in a Japanese Home.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

IN THE UNITED STATES, pouring and drinking tea is at most merely a social event. In Japan, it is a ceremonial covering virtually all phases of etiquette observed in the native mode of living.

So reports Miss Mattie Maddux, of Washington, who recently returned home after two years in the Orient. Spending most of her time in Japan, where she was guest in the home of a Japanese friend outside of Tokyo, Miss Maddux had much opportunity to observe family life and new and traditional customs in the country across the Pacific.

"In the strenuous life of modern Japan, it is not uncommon for young women to take lessons in the etiquette of tea drinking," Miss Maddux said. "My hostess had studied it for ten years and felt she still had much to learn about it. All Japanese women want to master the tea ceremonial and the art of flower arrangement."

Esthetic Entertainment Cult.

The tea ceremony is unique in Japan. Once a secular pastime—it was originally introduced from China by Buddhist monks of the Zen sect—it has come to be a cult of esthetic entertainment. "And no matter how westernized a Japanese woman may become, she still enjoys taking part in the tea ceremony—one of the most impressive traditional remnants in Japan," Miss Maddux said.

In this connection she said that the etiquette of the tea ceremony provides that certain subjects are taboo while it is being carried out. "You aren't supposed to talk about money, or politics or religion," she said, "but you may discuss philosophy and traditions."

She also pointed out that while the Japanese are gradually taking up many American customs, the older families still uphold ancestral traditions. "For example, in numerous instances marriages are arranged by parents and guardians," she said. "A young man and woman are not supposed to see each other until the day they are married; and since this is consistent with Japanese psychology and tradition, marriages are just as successful there as they are here."

Divorces Easily Obtained.

She mentioned, however, that divorces are common in Japan, "and very easy to get—particularly by the man if the wife bears no children."

While both old and new customs have important parts in modern Japanese life, Miss Maddux believes the Japanese are more contented when observing their own traditions than when they adopt Western customs, because the new ideas are generally in disagreement with what the Japanese have been taught.

Discussing family life in the home where she visited, Miss Maddux said the mother and her two sons lived in a foreign house, furnished in the foreign manner. "The boys have never worn Japanese clothes, but they observe festival days in the traditional way," Miss Maddux said. "The mother is a graduate of Oberlin College in this country. The father (who is now dead) also spent much time in America.

"According to tradition, the elder son is head of that household, and his mother and brother live on his bounty. Also, according to the ancestral custom, the mother cannot correct the elder son. Yet he is an extremely well-behaved boy. Filial piety is one of the outstanding characteristics of Japanese youth; another is industry."

Imbued With Ambition.

Both boys in the household where Miss Maddux visited arose at 5 o'clock and were at school by 7. In the afternoon after school was dismissed, both boys studied until bedtime.

She further explained that the two boys went to school every day except Sunday. "On Saturday, they go for half a day and spend all afternoon studying English," she said. "On Sunday, after they finish their skating lessons, they play. Then, too, there are many festival occasions when their studies are forgotten in the round of merry-making."

Miss Maddux also pointed out that many Japanese children have three guardians. One represents the father's family; another, the mother's; the third is not a relative. "All must agree on important questions concerning the child," she said. "For example, when my hostess decided she wanted her children to change schools, the guardians were consulted and gave their consent before the mother's wish was carried out."

Courteous to Visitors.

Miss Maddux commented on the courtesy of the Japanese people. "Everywhere on the island the visitor is the recipient of kindness and thoughtfulness." She mentioned too that "the Japanese never discuss anything unpleasant—crime or war or the foibles of either persons or countries. Furthermore, you don't hear any bickering, either in homes, on the streets, or in shops. From what I observed, they simply don't fuss; they don't even frown."

'Surgical Rest' Collapses Lung, Aids Recovery

Injections of Air Into Chest Forces Complete Halt of Activity.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

WE KNOW that in the case of a fractured bone the only way to promote healing is to join the fragments so firmly that movement is impossible—in other words, compel complete rest. Lying down, that is, rest in bed, requires the lungs to do less work than when the individual is walking or running but it does not rest the lungs completely. In fact, as long as life continues the lungs must maintain a certain amount of activity—enough to supply oxygen to the tissues. Hence absolute rest is impossible. But we can rest a portion of the lung—when it is diseased—through the employment of any one of several methods, chief of which is pneumothorax or collapse therapy.

Pneumothorax has been used for many years and consists in introducing air into the pleural space which forces the lung (in the absence of adhesions) to collapse. Although the introduced air is gradually absorbed, many days may elapse and, in the meantime, the lung has secured considerable rest. Experts in tuberculosis who have had extended experience with the procedure are most enthusiastic about it. It is a close approach to "splinting" the lung or fixing it so that the minimum of movement will occur.

But a short time ago it was felt that pneumothorax should be advised only in those cases in which the disease was confined to one side of the chest. It was obvious that much improvement occurred whenever a lung in which a cavity was present was shrunk to a very small area. By this means the cavity was closed and it was found that if the lung could be retained at rest long enough healing would take place. Pneumothorax is now practiced when both lungs are diseased and in the presence of large and multiple cavities. The procedure has also been found to be of the greatest value in severe pulmonary hemorrhage. Following its use there is usually a reduction in fever, lessening of cough and expectoration, and gain in appetite and weight. The mental reaction of the patient is at the same time most encouraging.

A convenient mechanical method of aiding lung rest is achieved by placing the patient in bed with bags of shot so arranged as to retard the expansion of the chest. These weights rest on the chest over the affected part of the lung and are gradually increased until the patient can bear 12 to 15 pounds. While lung rest, under this plan, is not absolute yet movement is restricted and diseased areas are known to heal with marked amelioration of symptoms.

Rest—by whatever method it may be accomplished—is the way to aid nature.

Debutantes Called Useless to World By Y. W. Official

"Debutantes are a class of lazy-minded, noneducated girls without a sense of social responsibility," said Miss Mary Dingman, of Newark, N. J., world secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, in a recent interview with the Canadian press.

She said debutantes render no real service to the world, while the so-called uneducated factory worker is "producing considerable wealth and giving service that means something to the community in which she lives."

Curb on Child Who Corrects Parents Urged

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

"We were driving along at about 40 miles an hous——"

"No, mother, it was 35. I looked at the speedometer."

Mary had a passion for accuracy and her mother could not report any event in her presence without being corrected over every detail. Finally one day she reached the end of her patience, and decided to prove to Mary once and for all how unnecessary her comments were.

She waited until she got the child alone, and then went back over the story. "Did it really make any difference whether we were going at 35 or 40? Why did it matter wheter we had gone 5 or 6 miles?" Mary agreed that it did not matter.

"Very well," her mother went on. "Grown people try to tell their stories rapidly and as accurately as necessary to give the general effect. They are not witnesses in a law court, and do not, therefore, seek perfection in small and irrevelant details. Listen for a while instead of finding fault and see if by so doing you can't learn to give a better account of things. As it is, you slow up the story to no purpose."

Children do not tell stories with an eye to the climax. To them each detail is of equal importance and they will meander along for minutes over a series of events which an adult would cover in as many seconds. It is annoying to the story-teller and bad for the child to allow it to make corrections in other people's narratives.

Hostess Gown Takes Cue From Daytime Dresses, Goes Sophisticated With Sleek Lines, Gay Colors

Military Version With Row of Military Frogs Is Attractive.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The hostess gown (or hostess coat or house coat), takes its fashion cues from daytime dresses—and loses none of its informality or graciousness. It goes in for softened adaptations of the military mode . . . goes tailored on occasion . . . goes boyish, with quantities of buttons and pockets. Or goes elegant, and revels in the splendor of trailing velvet.

So there's a hostess gown for fashion's every mood. For leisure hours when her greatest ambition is peace and quiet . . . and for those occasions when she wants to be fairly steeped in glamour!

The miss sketched at the right of our illustration has chosen a military version of the hostess gown. Note the row of military frogs—the stand-up collar, and—for a touch of softness—the billowing sleeves.

Four little-boy pockets, and a whole army of buttons marching up the front, distinguish the costume of the lady at the left of the picture. To top it all, she wears a metal ascot—gleaming like a bit of molten silver.

The old reliable flannel robe was usually more noted for its warmth than for its elegance. But this year it goes quite sophisticated, with long, sleek lines and livelier colors. A popular edition of the 1935-36 flannel robe is sketched at the center of the picture. Note the trim metallic fastenings, and the suave lines. The color is dark navy, with a Chinese red lining.

For dining at home when the occasion is thoroughly informal, but calls for a gown with a tinge of femme fatale about it, fashion wraps herself up in velvet, and turns herself out a Period Portrait! In a gown that might have been worn at the Court of Kublai Khan . . . or Lorenzo di Medici . . . or Napoleon Bonaparte. These last are very popular — with their low, square cut Directoire necklines, and often a panel of pleated chiffon spilling down the front.

Deep Jewel Tones Are Tops for New Velvet Collection.

Deep jewel tones are tops for this new velvet collection—sapphire, ruby and amethyst. Bright Araby red, too, and a new whipped-strawberry-cream shade that looks good enough to eat!

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

A TEEN AGE brood these days is enough to make any lady feel her age . . . even if her figure is lithe and her bobbed hair burnished with gold. When the boy's aren't annihilating themselves at football, the girls are tearing around the country side at umpty umph miles an hour.

Unless they happen to have a home where they like to hang out better . . . That means a home that's not only attractive but genial—and without too many old folks underfoot. (You'll just have to grin and bear being thought of as an antique by the high school gang!). So—give them the living room if it means that you and dad have to take to the storeroom with the evening paper.

Fresh colors and not too many don'ts about hurting the furniture will lure the young people home nights. Then lots of comfortable places to sit, a fire on the hearth if possible with a corn popper handy. And in easy access an electric grill with the makings of welsh rarebit or fudge on the spur of the moment.

The materials that come in nice colors yet can stand the wear and tear of high school parties include homespuns, denims, tapestries, pebble-cloth, frieze, brocatelle, mohair and velvet. The safest colors are bottle green, bittersweet, nut brown, garnet, peacock blues, grape, emerald, deep coral wisteria, tomato, sapphire, chestnut.

If you're doing a lot of the refurnishing yourself send a stamp to Miss Boykin in care of The Post for her bulletin, "How To Upholster A Chair."

Job Decline In Maryland Is Revealed

October Figures Held Disturbing Factor in Aid Tangle.

WPA Work Is Refused by Many Seeking Private Posts.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 15.—A disturbing note in Maryland's complex relief situation was sounded today with the release of figures showing that employment during October in the State had a decrease of more than the seasonable average as compared with figures for September.

In spite of these statistics, Francis H. Dryden, State PWA head, said that many persons on relief were refusing work-relief jobs in the hope of finding private employment. Dryden also declared that he had money and labor enough to carry out only one-third of the projects which have been approved.

The employment figures were contained in the monthly report of Charles S. Warner, commissioner of labor and statistics.

Pay Roll Drop Less.

While the decrease of October employment under that of September was more than average, the pay roll decrease was less than the average, which is made up of figures for the last 12 years. Compared with October, 1934, the picture this year is more cheerful.

	Oct. decrease under Sept.	Average monthly seasonable decrease	Oct. increase over Oct. 1934
Employment	1	7.8
Pay rolls	1.0	20.4
Employment, Baltimore area only	1	...	6.3
Pay rolls, Baltimore	1.5	...	21.5

During the day, Harry Greenstein, State relief administrator, announced that he would hold a series of county conferences to acquaint legislators and county authorities with relief problems. Such a meeting has already been held in St. Mary's County. Greenstein said that it was so successful that plans were mapped for similar gatherings in all counties.

To Analyze Situation.

"At these meetings," Greenstein said every effort will be made to develop comprehensive analyses of the relief situation in each of the counties, as well as from the broader viewpoint of the State as a whole, and to acquaint each member of the legislative delegations and county boards with all angles of the local and State problems."

Big Yields Due On Oyster Bars Seeded in 1934

Maryland Opens 2 Areas to Dredging; Closed for Over a Year.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 15.—Maryland oyster dredgers went to work today on two bars seeded in 1934 and closed to dredging since that time. Conservation department officials predicted the yield from those bars would be large.

Mud Rock, opposite Deal's Island in Somerset County, and Parker's Bar, off the Anne Arundel shore just north of the mouth of Herring Bay, were seeded with 33,000 bushels of young oysters in 1934 and conservation officials said the yield on Mud Rock might be three bushels for every one planted.

The Parker's Bar yield is not expected to be so heavy, but probably will be two bushels for every one planted.

Cold weather and the approach of Thanksgiving had increased the demand for oysters, conservation officials said. The opening of the new areas is expected to be a material help to oystermen.

700 Hunting Licenses Are Issued at LaPlata

Special Dispatch to The Post.

La Plata, Md., Nov. 15.—With the opening of the hunting season in Maryland today more than 700 licenses have been issued here.

Sportsmen show little enthusiasm at the prospects of the ducking season. With only a 30-day open season, and this during the early winter months before severe weather in the North causes ducks to come into local waters, this sport locally has lost its appeal.

2 Held in Wheat Theft.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 15.—Leon B. Plowden and Tyree Daugherty, the former a taxi driver, were ordered held here today for the grand jury following arraignment yesterday before a local magistrate on charges of stealing 40 bushels of wheat from the barn of Thomas Clapham, near Vanclevesville. Both pleaded guilty. The grand jury reconvenes December 31.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 15.—Initiation ceremonies for Gamma Chapter of Alpha Phi Sigma, national honorary scholastic society at Fredericksburg State Teachers College, were held last night. Nineteen students were admitted to membership and eight members received advanced degrees.

Membership in the society is limited to high school valedictorians and salutatorians and to others who, after entering college, attain a scholastic standing placing them in the upper one-sixth of the student body. The organization confers three degrees for scholastic attainment: the novice degree, the apprentice, and the master.

The following students received the degree of the novice last night:

Cather Flays State Pension For Teachers

Says They Should Be Paid Enough to Care for Selves.

He Is Unwilling to Place Them in Pauperized Class.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 15.—State Senator T. Russell Cather, of Winchester, tonight expressed disapproval of State contributions to a pension system for teachers, in an address before the Norfolk Teachers Association's annual banquet.

"I believe that the teachers of Virginia should be paid a fair and adequate salary," he declared, adding that "when this is done, they may provide their own pensions like the rest of us."

Cather compared pay of school teachers with that of other professional and manual workers in Virginia and outlined the requirements made by law for qualifications as a teacher.

In this discussion Cather pointed out the need for school teachers receiving "adequate" salaries and said that "as a member of a legislative branch of the State government, my efforts and my votes will always be directed toward that end."

"I certainly am unwilling to place the teachers of Virginia in a pauperized class by themselves," the Winchester Senator said. "If and when they are paid adequately, they should, like the rest of the citizens, make provision for their old age or suffer the consequences. The Commonwealth should not be called upon to pay for their improvidence."

Body of Woman Found; Police Hunt for Man

Victim, 29, Scratched and Bruised; Driver of Car Being Sought.

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 15.—While awaiting the report of City Coroner C. M. Irvin as to the cause of the death of Eula Jane Smith, 29, whose body was found on a hillside here today, police conducted an intensive search for a young man believed to have been the driver of an automobile from which the woman supposedly had been thrown or had fallen.

Dr. Irvin, after a cursory examination, said it was possible her neck was broken, but though it probable death was due to other causes.

The young woman's body, bruised and scratched, was fully clothed, with the exception of shoes. The body had been on the hillside for some hours, the coroner said.

Evidences were that the car had traveled a wide circle across the bare lots, stopping at a point several feet from where the body was found. The tires of the auto left no tread marks.

Roanoke Workers Vote WPA Strike

Monday Set as Deadline for Negotiation Pact.

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 15.—Relief workers affiliated with the Workers Alliance of America voted here last night to call a strike on WPA jobs Monday morning unless an agreement to negotiate their demands is reached, it was revealed today.

Hilliard Bernstein, an alliance organizer from New York, declared that the strike vote passed "overwhelmingly," but refused to reveal the number of those voting to strike. He said that the list of demands included a 10 per cent wage increase and that it had been presented to E. B. Brown, area WPA manager.

Bernstein indicated that the alliance would attempt to influence locals of the Federal Laborers Union, which embraces workers regularly employed as well as relief labor.

New Highway To Be Rushed In Maryland

Hagerstown -- Frederick Road Must Start by December 15.

Proposed Route Would Save 4 Miles; Is PWA Project.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hancock, Md., Nov. 15.—Dr. H. E. Tabler, chairman of the State Roads Commission, today confirmed the report that the commission is considering a new dual highway between Hagerstown and Frederick that will reduce the distance between the two western Maryland cities by four miles. He said a number of commission surveyors have been engaged since Monday in laying out the new route.

Tabler said the new route was necessary in order to meet conditions of a ruling by Comptroller McCarl, who held that no PWA funds could be used in the rebuilding of existing Federal highways.

Work on the surveys is being rushed so that at least a section of the proposed road can be under contract by December 15, the deadline fixed for starting highway programs with PWA funds. The proposed highway will be constructed on a 55-45 basis, while work on other sections of the National Highway and other highways in the State will be done with State funds. One million dollars in Federal funds are available for this work.

The proposed route of the new 150-foot highway between Frederick and Hagerstown would be via Smoketown, Washington County, Myersville, Frederick County, with the South Mountain grade eliminated by passing through a gap in the mountain near Smoketown. The new highway would meet the present Route 40 near the State police sub-station, just west of Frederick.

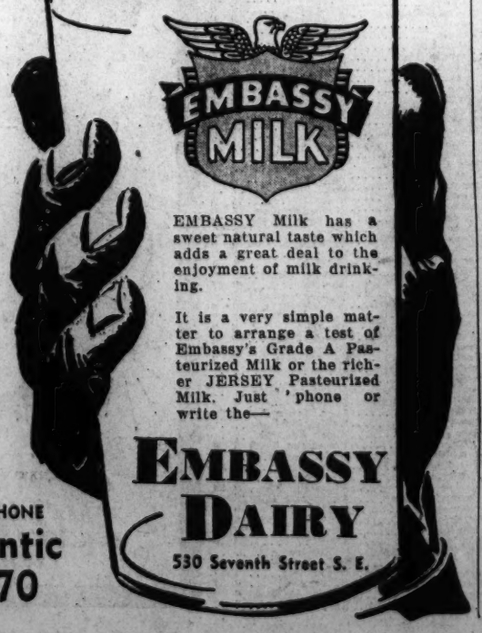

The present Route 40 between the two cities would remain undisturbed.

Army-Notre Dame and Carolina-Duke Claim Spotlight Today

Irish, Cadets To Attract 80,000

42,000 to See Tarheels Risk Rose Bowl Hopes in Durham Game.

Minnesota-Michigan and Ohio State-Illinois Top Midwest Card.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The major reverberations, if any, in the collegiate football scramble tomorrow seem likely to echo from the Atlantaic seaboard, North and South.

Familiar manifestations of football phobia may be observed in the Southwest and Midwest, where a number of matches bearing upon conference championships will be played, but the S. R. O. signs will be needed only along the Eatsern front.

New York's annual emotional reaction to the Army-Notre Dame game has reached a high pitch, although the outcome of the game involves less significance than appeared certain a couple of weeks ago. Tickets were in demand at scalpers' prices tonight and a capacity crowd of 80,000 in the Yankee Stadium was assured.

Syracuse Faces Colgate.

Upstate the climax game of the season tmorrow will find Syracuse's unbeaten team, a Northern possibility for the Sugar Bowl, battling the maroon-colored jinx of Colgate before a sellout crowd gathering of 36,000 in Archbold Stadium.

Down in Dixie, North Carolina's rose bowl and Southern Conference title hopes will be involved in the annual match with Duke, with a crowd of 42,000, biggest of the southern season, looking on and national interest focused upon the outcome. Meanwhile, Georgia's challenge to the Southeastern title ambitions of Louisiana State will attract upwards of 30,000 to Sanford Stadium at Athens, Ga.

For hte first time this season the Big Ten plays an all-family schedule, topped by Minnesota's bid to overpower Michigan for the second straight year before 40,000 at Ann Arbor and Ohio State's reception for Illinois at Columbus in full view of 45,000 spectators.

Southwest Battle.

The chance that Texas may upset Texas Christian and that Arkansas, playing at home, may make things interesting for the Southwest's other unbeaten aggregation, Southern Methodist, enlivens the situation in this rugged combat area. There's a lull in the gridiron proceedings on the West Coast, generally speaking, in anticipation of a sudden storm when St. Mary's and Santa Clara collide Sunday afternoon before 60,000 at San Francisco.

Dartmouth, pointing for the "Ivy championship" game with Princeton next week, cannot afford to underestimate Cornell's "Little Red Team." Navy has too much manpower for Columbia, but Pennsylvania will have to click agatin to avoid being beaten by Penn State. Pittsburgh, rated off its improvement in whipping Army last week, is the choice over Nebraska.

Colorado Improved.

Colorado, the Rocky Mountain leader, undoubtedly has improved a great deal since dropping an early season clash to Missouri, but is a doubtful choice against another intersectional rival from the Big Six, Kansas.

California's unbeaten Golden Bears tune up against the college of the Pacific, coached by Amos Alonzo Stagg, in preparation for the "big game" with Stanford next Saturday. Southern California, showing improvement, has an outside chance to register its first major victory of the season at Washington State's expense. Stanford should score a few touchdowns, for a change, against Montana and give Monk Moscrip's talented toe a rest.

Abbey Club Will Honor C. U. Alumni at Dinner

The Abbey Club, a social fraternity of Catholic University, will honor returning alumni at the annual homecoming banquet of the club, at Sholl's tonight after the Western Maryland homecoming game.

The Very Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, associate professor of philosophy at the university and moderator of the Abbey Club, will be guest of honor.

The number of licenses issued is about 500 under the 1934 figure. Rabbits were reported scarce in most sections of the county.

Basketball Games.

C. U. Rules 8-5 Choice Over Terrors

Seeks to Avenge 2-0 Defeat of 1934 in Battle at Stadium Today.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its embarkation on athletic seas this afternoon with appropriate ceremonies and a football game at Griffith Stadium. Western Maryland's husky eleven will help stage the gridiron battle, and, it is reliably reported, intends to do a little celebrating of its own, but Catholic U. still reigns an 8-5 favorite.

Their star on the ascendant after a slow start, the Terrors are in an excellent position to spoil Catholic's little party. A 25-0 victory over Baltimore followed by last week's smashing 12-6 triumph over Boston College indicate the power of their attack. The boys, too, have been pointed for this game and can be counted on for one of their best performances.

But Catholic's bristling team, one of the best turned out at the school since the game's introduction there, will bode no trifling with the impressive record it is compiling. The Cards have their full strength available for the fray and with vivid memories of last year's 2-to-0 defeat racing through their collective mind they should be in an ugly receptive mood.

Catholic has yet to fulfill the glowing prophesies of its greatness uttered before the start of the season. It defeated Duquesne, Detroit, St. Mary's, LaSalle, all good teams, but never seemed to hit its true stride against these clubs, and then it lost to DePaul. It has yet to reveal its real punch, and Coach Dutch Bergman thinks that this afternoon will give his men the proper setting.

With Bill Adamaitis, a halfback, and Hermie Schmarr and George Mulligan, ends, available for duty, the Cards have one of the best passing attacks the town ever saw at their disposal, and it probably will play a heavy part in the division of the spoils. "Irish" Carroll, flashy sophomore halfback, is fully recovered from an injury that left him with three broken ribs, and Bob Makofske's injured ankle has healed sufficiently to permit his return to fullback. In reserve will be "Spec" Foley, the team's spectacular punter. All in all, Catholic will not want for a potent and diversified attack.

The Terrors do not have another Bill Shepherd in their line-up this year, but they have a four-man backfield that is a constant threat to the opposition. Bull Draper, former Western High School star, will occupy Shepherd's familiar place at fullback, and in previous games has demonstrated that there isn't much difference between the two.

A heavy, hard-charging line and a powerful running attack, plentifully endowed with deception, will be thrown at the District eleven.

Maryland Is Favored to Trim W.&L. in Home-Coming Today

IN a colorful home-coming setting that will have the added brilliance of a Shriners' demonstration, the University of Maryland clashes with Washington and Lee, deposed Southern Conference champion, this afternoon at College Park. The kick-off is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

On the strength of its thrilling performance last week against Indiana, Maryland will enter the game a slight favorite, but with the Generals apparently just attaining their peak and every man on the squad in good physical condition the Terps have another tough engagement on their hands.

Maryland went into action a pronounced favorite when the schools met last year, but trudged off at the end of 60 furious minutes of football a 7-0 loser. Eight of the starting team that faced the Terps last year will appear in the W. and L. line-up today, and Maryland has nine veterans of that battle available.

Washington and Lee, with a heavy and almost immovable line, probably will wait for a break, and if it can get the upper hand it will be content to spend all the remaining time playing defensive football. The Generals are a trifle short of backfield material, although in Bailey, fullback, and Ellis, an end who will do the punting, they have a pair of offensive threats that would fit in well with any offense.

Maryland's offense will be built around Vic Willis, whose angling frame will be the target of innumerable short passes, and the running of Headley, Guckeyson and Stonebraker. Held out of last week's exercises because of injuries, Stonebraker probably will have an important role in the festivities.

A varied program, beginning this morning with a soccer and girls' field hockey match, has been arranged. Shriners from Baltimore and Washington, in their gay uniforms, will parade and drill between halves.

Virginia Freshmen Defeat Tar Babies

40-Yd. March, 65-Yd. Run Bring 14-0 Triumph.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 15.—Virginia first-year gridders won from the Northh Carolina Freshmen here today, 14 to 0, to register their fourth victory in five starts.

The young Cavaliers registered touchdowns in the first and third quarters and in each case Dinwiddie's placement kick proved good. The first score, following a 40-yard march, was made on a 35-yard pass, Dinwiddie to McCarlin.

Early in the third period Sargeant, Virginia end, intercepted a Carolina pass and raced 65 yards for the second touchdown.

The Tar Babies made their best showing in the final quarter, after numerous substitutions had been made in the Virginia lineup due to injuries. Twice the Cavalier goal was threatened after some effective line plunging by Kraynick and Watson, but intercepted passes ended the rallies.

Louis-Mader Battle In Detroit Is Sought

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Joe Louis, Detroit's Negro heavyweight sensation, will have another bout added to his already busy winter program if Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club and Frank Macdonald, of Detroit, succeed in getting together.

Macdonald wants to match Louis with Eddie Mader, promising young heavyweight, in Detroit. If the bout goes through, it probably will be held early in February, following Louis' bout with an opponent yet to be named in January at Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, MD., Nov. 15.—The Columbia University football squad of 32 players worked out at the Naval Academy today for their clash with the Navy here tomorrow.

Lou Little brought his Lions down from Baltimore by bus for the final drill at Thompson Stadium. He said the squad was in good condition and that his ace runner, Al Barabas, was "in good shape" and would be in the backfield tomorrow.

While waiting for his squad to go on the field Little gave his slant on the game:

"I suppose Navy has the edge on past records, but we have got a good game in our system and tomorrow might be the day."

The Navy squad tapered off its training with the usual pre-game program. Hamilton has nine of his squad in the hospital o nthe sick list and is looking forward to a tough fight with the Lions. Each coach appears to have a wholesome respect for the other's team.

Armour Gains $150.

Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., who also had a first-day 72, ran up a 78 today and yielded third place to Tommy Armour's pair of 74's. Third place was worth $150.

MacFarlane's 150 landed him in a tie with Dick Metz, of Chicago, for a split of $180. Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, and John Golden, Noroton, Conn., tied at 151 and divided $135. The rest of the prize money, $150 in all, was divided between Ralph Beach, Baltimore; Gene Kunes, Philadelphia; Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, and Tony Manero, Greensboro, N. C.

Central's Ace

BILLY RICHARDSON, who figured in both touchdowns in Central's 12-6 victory over Eastern yesterday. He threw the pass which resulted in one and ran 25 yards to score the other.

championship in three years. The Mount Pleasanters supplanted Tech as the dominating force of inter-high football. In winning they chalked up their fourth straight inter-high victory.

The teams which took the field were a tribute to the able coaching of Hardy Pearce, of Central, and Artie Boyd, of Eastern. Both starting their first years as football coaches at their respective fields, had fashioned high-caliber teams which found themselves fighting for the championship.

The victory may largely be attributed to Pearce's strategy, for it was his move in sending in Sam Fox, brilliant pass-catcher, which resulted in the second Central touchdown and what proved to be the winning margin. Fox made a sensational catch of Richardson's pass on the goal line for the score.

Jones Prevents Pass.

But to single out such an outstanding star as Richardson hardly does credit to the great play of the Central team as a whole. The play of Ross (Pop) Chaimson, the finest lineman in the series, was little short of spectacular. Chaimson blocked the punt which led up to the second touchdown.

Johnny Jones, Central's stocky halfback, saved what appeared to be a sure Eastern touchdown in the second quarter when he leaped up and knocked down a pass from Shugrue about to be received by two stretching Eastern receivers, Shaw and Brand, on the goal line. No Central man appeared in the vicinity till Jones appeared out of nowhere to make his saving stab.

It was a 65-yard punt by Joe Moran—a soaring, spiraling kick of a soggy football—which led indirectly to the first touchdown. The kick sailed far over Russ Kidwell's head and was downed on the Eastern 2-yard line. Chick Di Giulian, of Eastern, punted short from behind his goal line and it was Chiamson, the tackle, who caught it and ran it back five yards to the Eastern 10-yard line. On the first play Richardson went off left tackle, hopping, skipping and jumping through a maze of Eastern tacklers for the touchdown.

Late in the same first quarter,

Picks Columbia Over Navy, Army Over the Irish.

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Oh well, only a couple of more weeks of this. I don't know why I even write this tonight. Nobody will believe me. Who would pay any attention to a poor old broken-down guy who picked 10 wrong, 5 right out of 15, an whose predictor's rating in a national news magazine is .55, with a total of 41 right and 34 wrong out of 75 games. I am feeling very low and unhappy, and very sorry for myself, because I am such a poor prognosticator and nobody takes me seriously any more, and people come around and want to bet with me. It takes courage to go on, folks, in the face of what I have suffered this week.

But I am going to reform this week, and be a man again, and hold up my head among my fellow selectors, prophets and predictors. Yes, I will stop picking those crazy upsets that have been ruining my score. I will just pick Columbia to beat Navy, Colgate to beat Syracuse, Army to beat Notre Dame, Marquette to beat Temple. How do you like that?

What's that? Syracuse is unbeaten, and Navy is an overwhelming favorite over Columbia? Not in my books, friends. I go on picking Colgate until the season is over. Eventually that Colgate team will win again. They can usually lick Syracuse.

ALSO Dr. Little at Columbia must win himself a ball game sooner or later. He likes to go into the game as the underpuppy. Columbia and Colgate to win, and dam the torpedoes. Nobody can intimidate me. I'm feeling better again. More like my old self. Let's gon on to discuss Army-Notre Dame.

Notre Dame is, I think, the better football team. But Army has just been through a pair of lickings, and one of them, at the hands of Pittsburgh, was a pip. It seems to be a part and parcel of football physchology that the worse you have been licked the week before, the harder you bounce back the week after. All football teams need deflation, and the Army football team is now throughly deflated, and ready to go from there. Notre Dame is a great rival. Notre Dame will be favored, and Army, I think will win the game much to its own surprise.

Notre Dame, too, was beaten last week, but it was a different kind of a loss. It was due to fatigue, the loss of good players, and general let-down after the Ohio State hysteria. Everyone knows that Northwestern never would have beaten the Notre Dame team that beat Pittsburgh. An so Notre Dame hasn't as much to bounce back from as Army has, and Notre Dame also suffered a real loss when it developed that Pilney can not play.

HE was the sparkplug, and with him they could do things that perhaps they couldn't do without him. The Notre Dame team the first half against Ohio State looked like a pretty bad football team. Physchologically, I think the Army may have the edge unless Layden can put over one of those "Go out there and win for Pilney" things.

And still, if comparative scores or records may be taken for anything, Notre Dame should win by a big score, and maybe it will. Notre Dame has played tougher opposition than has Army, and the one team they both played, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame won the game, and Army was beaten by a large score. But to me it looks like ups again where one team has one of those screwy football setall the strength on paper, and the weaker team does the unexpected.

The rest of them? Nothing much to it, this week. I wish the games were really tough so that I could make a real comeback instead of just picking the easy ones. Minnesota is too good for Michigan and will go right on winning. Penn State will beat the crumbling Pennsylvania team and add to the woes of that fine school. Tulane will beat Kentucky in the South and so will Vanderbilt beat Tennessee. Those Vandies must beat SOMEONE eventually.

The Parade of the All-Stars of U. S. Colleges

Clemson College—Its All-Time Honor Roll

Unbeaten, Untied Team of '09 Swamped 'Bama and Georgia.

By George Trevor.
Nationally Known Football Authority.

WHEN the old-timers gather round for the selection of Clemson's all-time all-star team they take you back into the early nineteen hundreds, to those days when the Tigers reigned supreme in the South, and the wily John Heisman, who guided their destiny till 1904, bewildered his opponents with spins, reverses and double laterals, the equal of anything seen on modern gridirons.

Clemson, founded in 1889 when Thomas G. Clemson left his estate to found an agricultural college, near the Seneca River in the back part of South Carolina, is justly proud of that undefeated, untied 1900 team, which defeated Alabama 49 to 0, South Carolina 51 to 0 and Georgia 39 to 5. These "telephone number" scores were common place occurrences in the old days.

The name of Little Johnny Maxwell, quarterback of '03 team, now located with the Virginia-Carolina Chem. Corp. of Richmond, Va., has taken its place with the John C. Calhoun mansion among the legends of the Clemson campus. A wee mite of a fellow with fleeting heels, untouchable hips, Maxwell's ball carrying and exceptional generalship probably gives him first place among the Purple and Orange immortals.

Jock Hanby, a big, powerful fullback, Vedder Sitton together with his two friendly rivals for the end assignments, Sadler and Lynah, were the backbone of this same '03 team when it steamrollered Georgia Tech 73 to 0.

Fullback Fritz Furtick, now managing a railroad in Salina, Kans., had as much forward drive as any of his present locomotives. To clear the track for his plunging powerhouse of the '03 team were Puss Derrick and John McLaurin, two tackles who stopped for no danger signals, yet to Bill Schilletter, school teacher in Tryon, N. C., goes the olive wreath of tackle supremacy. His play in distance than two lengths had his rider desired.

Second in the field of eight in the $2,500 added race was Apprentice, which had a margin of a length on Lynx Eye at the all-important finish line. It was almost a case of the last shall be first with Chatmoss, for he was an inconspicuous horse as Starter Milton sent the field away on the mile and a sixteenth trip.

It was a question during the first furlong whether Chatmoss or Lynx Eye was the trailer. Weston, the lightweight of the party, went to the front at once in a business-like manner. Thorson and Apprentice followed and the others were strung out.

Reined in at Wire.

The leaders were well into the turn for the stretch when Richards asked Chatmoss for speed. The horse responded with a series of leaps and bounds that were the hand-writing on the wall to those of us with glasses.

Lynx Eye had made his bid a little earlier and it was evident that he could not withstand the rush of Chatmoss. In the stretch, Richards went to the whip and Chatmoss came into his own. In front at the sixteenth pole, the remainder of the distance was a mere formality and Richards was "taking in" on his mount at the wire.

Glenbroom Takes First.

Glenbroom, a springly son of Brooms, won the first race of the meeting with a stretch rush that disposed of Gilt and Lookabout. Ridden by Apprentice Charlie Eye, Glenbroom was not a factor until he staged his closing bid. The winner was a $15.20 betting proposition.

The longshot players, a few of them, were in their glory in the second race when Sang Froid, running his first race for a new owner, J. E. Simmons, scored a nose decision over Some Good in the second sprint of the day. Portden was third. Sang Froid led virtually all the way and a $51.30 mutuel was displayed.

Someone Else, a son of Masked Marvel 2d, pulled a little magic in the third race by suddenly finding improved form to shock the customers by defeating, among others, Stage Whisper and Atholton. Ridden by Jockey Alfred Robertson, Someone Else came from far back to take command at the sixteenth pole and win going away by a length. It was another longshot at $49.50.

First Favorite Wins.

Coincidence, the "Thanks a Million purse," named for a show at a Baltimore theater, broke the spell of the longshots and Maddest, a $5.10 favorite, was returned the winner. He came from last to first in the last four furlongs to win drawing out on Manager Bill and U. Demon. Western Lad set the pace most of the way but tailed off when the real running began in the stretch.

Clemson's Stars Of Gridiron Listed

1914 is still mentioned in the "hot stove" leagues of the South.

Turning the pages ahead to the more recent era of Josh Cody, who coached the excellent 1928 team, we find the name of Bob Jones, present freshman football and varsity boxing coach at Clemson, of whom it is said that he never dropped a pass that touched his finger tips and often saved those that skimmed across team mates' upstretched hands.

Another of the "twenty-eighters" is O. K. Pressley, whose playing was even better than his intials imply. Rated second only to Peter Pund as a center that year, he joined the marines and showed the Devil Dogs the fine art of snapping back. Still others are Goat McMillan, present assistant coach at Furman University, S. C., and Bob Swofford, a guard of the man-mountain type.

Jess Neely, the coach now in charge, deserves credit for his patient, constructive efforts. He has developed a young giant, Tom Brown, who plays offensive guard and defensive tackle like a veteran and should become a national figure this fall. Randy Hinson made his niche in the hall of fame last October. An all-round star, his record in punt returning was of such particular merit that great things may be expected of him in 1935.

Rainy Weather Hurts Fredericksburg Races

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 15.—Rainy weather seriously interfered with the opening of a two-day harness race meet here this afternoon. Two heats were run in the only two races to take place before a handful of persons in the fair grounds. A large card is slated for tomorrow afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock.

P. B. Hanford, well known Richmond sportsman, arrived late with a large string of horses, including Peter Glen, famous trotter. Tomorrow's program includes a 2:14 trot, 2:10 pace and a free-for-all.

Grid Injuries Fatal.

Pawtucket, R. I., Nov. 15 (AP).—kick in the stomach during a sandlot football game last Saturday proved fatal today to Albert Nunes, 18, high school student.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLEN BROOM, $15.20, $9.60, $3.80; GILT, $7.80, $4.00; LOOKABOUT, $2.40.

GLEN BROOM hustled into a contending position in the early running, went to the outside of KING BEE when straightened into the home stretch, took command inside in the final furlong and outstayed GILT under severe urging. GILT, kept on the inside from the beginning, moved up fast entering the home stretch and finished stoutly. LOOKABOUT, slower than usual to settle in her stride, settled in full stride approaching the home stretch and finished with a tremendous rush. KING BEE showed nice speed for the first five furlongs, then tired when challenged. LIGHT weakened after moving up stoutly at the turn. SHORT SKIRT could not reach the leaders. ABSCONDER tired after five furlongs.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:38. Off at 1:39½. Winner, J. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANG FROID, $51.30, $14.10, $8.20; SOME GOOD, $3.80, $2.80; PORTDEN, $6.00.

SANG FROID, showing sudden improvement, took command soon after the start, was kept in the better footing and, holding on with excellent courage, barely lasted long enough to withstand SOME GOOD. Latter, rated in close pursuit of the winner from the start, came through on the inside when reaching the home stretch, gained steadily under severe urging and was racing strongly at the end. PORTDEN, a forward factor from the beginning, continued gamely when the final drive came. LADY MARLBORO came through on the inside at the stretch turn and finished stoutly. GOLD THORN showed a good effort. BONANZA went evenly throughout. HAPPY FIND could not threaten. SABLIN had no mishaps. MARSON showed a flash of early speed.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:08. Off at 2:10½. Winner, R. Robertson's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOMEONE ELSE, $49.50, $14.10, $4.00; STAGE WHISPER, $6.70, $3.50; ATHOLTON, $2.20.

SOMEONE ELSE, outrun for the first half mile, reached a forward position when entering the home stretch, swung to the outside to wear down the leaders and came out nearing the finish. STAGE WHISPER forced a steady pace, displaced ATHOLTON midway of the home stretch, but could not withstand the winner. ATHOLTON was hurried to the front, saved ground, but failed to rally when placed to punishment. MY KIN was ridden hard for the entire trip. GRAND KNIGHT was held safe throughout. MATE TEA was always far back. HAROLD'S WAY broke down and was pulled up.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $331.40.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:36. Off at 2:40½. Winner, Ascot Stable's dk. b. c. (3), by Distraction—Vexing. Trained by H. Young. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:15, 1:42 2-5, 1:47 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MADDEST, $5.10, $3.10, $2.20; MANAGER BILL, $3.80, $2.80; U. DEMON, $2.70.

MADDEST, permitted to settle in his best stride before moving into contention, circled his field in the last half mile, then closing strongly wore MANAGER BILL down in the closing sixteenth. MANAGER BILL followed in close pursuit of WESTERN LAD, assumed command when straightened into the home stretch and held on willingly for the balance of the trip. U. DEMON raced forwardly under strong urging, but was not good enough. WESTERN LAD was rushed into the lead at the first turn, went along under slight restraint, but could not stay when put to a drive. LADY FLINDERS and MECHANICS GOLD had no mishaps.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $2,000 added. The Bowie Claiming Stakes. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:07. Off at 3:09. Winner, Mrs. T. E. Proctor's b. h. (6), by Chatterton—Blue Moss. Trained by T. Lee Evans. Net value to winner, $1,919; second, $400; third, $200; fourth, $100. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49, 1:14 2-5, 1:41 2-5, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHATMOSS, $25.00, $12.90, $7.60; APPRENTICE, $10.40, $5.30; LYNX EYE, $3.40.

CHATMOSS, slow to find his best speed, was reserved behind the leaders until entering the stretch, moved up boldly to take command, drew out into a safe lead and was never threatened thereafter. APPRENTICE, a forward factor from the start, responded well when called upon and held on well, while being no match for the winner. LYNX EYE gradually improved his position from a slow start and closed stoutly. THORSON had good early speed, dropped back when reaching deep going, but closed courageously. HINDU QUEEN was never a factor and appeared to dislike the going. WESTON had early speed, but stopped badly. FORTIFICATION was forced to race on the inside and could not get clear.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:37. Off at 3:37½. Winner, K. N. Gilpin's dk. b. or br. g. (3), by Dunlin—Lady Emmeline. Trained by C. M. Feltner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:42, 1:47 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUCK LANGHORNE, $13.70, $6.70, $3.40; MERELY, $3.80, $2.40; FLYING DERE, $2.80.

BUCK LANGHORNE, rated close to the leaders until leaving the back stretch, worked his way into the thick of contention midway of the final turn, then continuing strongly under a hard drive outstayed MERELY approaching the final turn. MERELY followed FLYING DERE under slight reserve, responded to punishment and closed with good energy. FLYING DERE outran her field to the first turn, was steadied in front, but faltered after being straightened into the home stretch. TIEMPO raced prominently, but was held safe when the real test came. FLOWERY LADY and FUSCO could not enter contention.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:08. Off at 4:09½. Winner, S. L. Burch's b. f. (3), by Volta—Sleet. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25, 0:50 3-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:45, 2:05 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAIL, $28.80, $14.60, $4.00; MARY'S MAY, $13.30, $5.90; COMING BACK, $2.30.

HAIL, going in her best form and kept close to the leaders in the early running, challenged strongly in the last five-sixteenths, wore MARY'S MAY down when straightened into the home stretch and drew out steadily thereafter. MARY'S MAY withstood repeated efforts from BELLE FILLE in the first seven furlongs, saved ground, but could not stay with the winner when caught. COMING BACK, rated close up, made a determined bid midway of the final turn, but hung badly during the closing drive. POLITEN was kept under pressure from the start and closed full of run. ARAB was never dangerous. BELLE FILLE weakened in the last half mile.

Woodrow Wilson of Portsmouth, finally whipped into real form by Coach Lester Kibler, will seek its third straight win against Andrew Lewis at Salem, and Washington-Lee, Clarendon, will play its first game as a Class A member with Newport News at Newport News.

Norfolk's pennant bount Maury Commodores will be hosts tomorrow to New Hanover High from Wilson, N. C. Undefeated and unscored on this season, Maury still has two hurdles to get over for the State championship. Both are neighboring opponents, Woodrow Wilson and Newport News.

G. W. Frosh to Oppose New Jerseyans Today

For the first time since 1932 a George Washington Freshmen football team will meet outside competition when Jean Sexton's Buff and Blue yearlings engage the Carney's Point, N. J., Y. M. C. A. eleven today on the latter's gridiron.

The G. W. Freshmen line-up is as follows: Innes and Berry, ends; Collins and Grbovaz, tackles; Czech and Renzaglia, guards; Benenson, center; Stamus, quarterback; Faris and Sampson, halfbacks, and Boring, fullback.

Carney's Point holds a victory over the Temple Freshmen.

Cavaliers End Home Season With V.P.I.

Line-up Shifted in Effort to Bolster Defense; 40th Meeting.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Nov. 15.—Virginia's last home game of the fall brings Virginia Polytechnic Institute to Scott Stadium at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in a contest that will mark the fortieth anniversary of the first gridiron meeting between Cavaliers and Gobblers.

Rain and wet grounds have handicapped the Virginians in their preparations for playing the strong Tech team which, after an uncertain start, is making a late bid for State-wide honors.

Virginia's line-up against the Techmen will include only one player who was in at the kick-off at Blacksburg last autumn. That man is Cullen Wilkin, regular right end, who'll probably be doing the puntiing for the Virginians tomorrow.

Capt. John Leys, who could not play against Tech last year because of an injury, and Wilkin, the two ends; Bill Banks at tackle, and the two starting guards, George Seibels and Alfred Seccombe, will be playing their last game in Scott Stadium tomorrow.

Defense Strengthened.

The Cavaliers have been spending much time strengthening their defenses under the supervision of Head Coach Gus Tebell. In an effort to strengthen the line he has moved Banks into one of the tackle posts instead of Leonard Trell.

Tech figured in tie games on its last two visits to Scott Stadium, but Cavalier supporters are not much interested in a deadlock tomorrow, because the Virginians have already played three 0-0 games this season.

While the Backsburgers' line is much the same as that used against Virginia last fall, the backfield is changed save for "Foot" Dickerson, the fine plunging fullback and great kicker who will figure largely in the Tech attack. The other V. P. I. backs, Wilson Brown, Mel Henry and Marvin Cregger, are all sophomores.

The probable line-ups:

Virginia.	Position.	V. P. I.
Leys	L.E.	Fritto
Weeks	L.T.	Banks
Seibels	L.G.	Bradshaw
Davenport	Center	Jones
Ingles	R.G.	Ingles
Banks	R.T.	Dodge
Wilkin	R.E.	Shockey
Male	Q.B.	Brown
Conner	L.H.	Henry
Ring	R.H.	Cregger
Martin	F.B.	Dickerson

Central Wins Title By Beating Eastern

the charging Chaimson smashed through to block a punt by DiGiulian as the latter tried to kick from his 32-yard line. Charlie Kline, alert Central end, recovered on the Eastern 37. Central drew a 5-yard penalty, but Richardson got it back and more on a 10-yard jaunt. Richardson made it a first down on the 25-yard line with 7 more yards. Moran picked up 8 yards and Richardson added another. On the next play, Richardson faded back 10 yards and passed to Fox, who had entered the game but 30 seconds earlier. Fox took the ball with a spectacular catch just over the goal line.

DiGuilian missed his place kick for the extra point. Richardson had failed to rush the first extra point.

Then Eastern came back like a hurricane. It pounded to the Central 36-yard line, where a fourth down pass from Shugrue to Brand was knocked down. Again it hit back to the 25-yard line, aided by a 17-yard run-back of a punt by Roy Michaels, but Richardson hit Curtin for a loss, and two passes, Shugrue to Michaels and Shugrue to Shaw failed. Again it went to the 29-yard line and then again to the 15, where it lost the ball on downs.

Michaels recovered a fumble by Vermillion on the Central 25-yard stripe and Eastern sailed to the 15 on a pass, Shugrue to Brand. Vermillion knocked down a pass, another was incomplete and Jones knocked down Shugrue's pass, which was bent for a touchdown.

The teams battled evenly through the third and fourth periods until Shugrue broke loose around left end behind nice blocking, shook off two tacklers and ran from his own 18-yard line 82 yards for the Eastern score with about five minutes to play. Central, incidentally, never got closer than 30 yards to the Eastern goal line after its second touchdown.

Sandwrack Triumphs At 'Gansett, Pays $7

Narragansett Park, R. I., Nov. 15 (AP).—The Saddle Spur Stables' Sandwrack proved his great liking for distances when he won the feature race, a mile and five furlongs event, here today.

With Mike Corona up, the gelding was always in contention. This was the first time a race of this distance has been run in New England. Sandwrack finished a neck in front of Mount Hood, which moved up from far back with Seawick, third, four lengths farther back.

The winner paid $7.80, $5.00 and $3.60; Mount Hood, $6.90 and $3.90, and Seawick, $3,50.

Dear Al: Bowie Race Track, Nov. 15.

Featured by the Autumn Handicap, this track offers an excellent Saturday program, and with the Government payday less than 24 hours past, some 20,000 are expected. Post time remains at 1 o'clock, and those who would invest in the daily double can do so until 12:45. Jockeys Nick Wall and Harry Lindberg, who ran afoul of the officials at Pimlico, will not see action for a few days. Their suspensions were carried over to this track by the Maryland racing commission. Certainly missed the "tote" here today. With the automatic betting machine it was possible to bet until the horses left the post. Not a few were shutout today because they failed to get in line earlier. If you know what happened to the Bennings selections today, just say nothing. I will see you later. Clocker Mike has nothing to send except regards. BILL.

First race—Snowshoe, is a lively miss from the Vanderbilt Stable and she seems destined to graduate from the maiden ranks here. She has shown me enough to warrant a top selection and I'm leaving the rest to Jockey Sammy Renick. Sweet as Sugar, breaking off the rail, will have to be dealth with, I believe. Sun Surplice to take care of the others. Clocker Mike likes Blue Alice, but she is far down the list.

Second race—Big Gawk, a recent winner, seems to have found a spot that will suit his purposes. Gets in with only steadying weight and Horn to do the riding. Celebrant might go well at this route with Joe Renick aboard. Bread King's early speed makes him a keen factor.

Third race—Highpool will have to better that last to defeat such as these, but he has shown some nice speed. He is partial to an off track and Merritt rides. Transporter and Thirteen Stars to battle it out for the place and show awards.

Fourth race—I'm going back to Wise Prince, despite the fact that he is picking up some weight off that last winning effort. He has been on the improve for some time and with a good ride should score again. The Sage Stable, with Nautch, Cycle and Microphone in the entries, seems to be taking the race seriously. Pretty Night for a part of the purse.

Fifth race—Only One picks up a package of 123 pounds for the handicap. He is a front runner of quality and at the shorter route may stick to his guns as he has in longer races. Merritt seems to get the most out of him and will be in the saddle. Scotch Bun is one which I expect to do a lot of running here. He was runnning over horses in the stretch last out and had to be taken to the inside for racing room. Tabitha is a speedy one with a fighting chance to cause an upset. I may be wrong, but I don't like Thursday with 116 pounds.

Sixth race—Naval Cadet will find a distance to his liking here. I would prefer a stronger rider than Faust, but he should do the job. Fluffy Lee has a lot of speed and will be on top as far as she goes. Silence III is a possible surprise. This one closed like the wind in a recent race and will have Horn aboard.

Seventh race—Old Judge defeated about the same brand of horse-flesh last out. He is asked to carry 116 pounds, but I'm going to string along. Wise Advocate is the one to beat. Bright Bird did well in New England and may be a kene factor.

Best bet—Only One.

Ficco Subdues Ray Goose on 27th Hole

East Potomac Overtime Match Ties Record; Birdie 3 Wins.

EQUALLING the District record for overtime matches, Charlie Ficco, the medalist, and Ray Goose battled 27 holes yesterday in the second round of the East Potomac turkey golf tournament before Ficco won with a birdie three on the ninth extra hole.

The victory sent Ficco into the semifinals.

The previous record for extra-hole matches was held by Maury Nee, of Columbia, and W. D. (Dub) Fondren, of Augusta, Ga., who staged a thrilling 27-hole scrap in the 1933 Manor invitation tournament, with Nee winning.

Ficco shot the first 18 holes (F and G courses) in 69, two under par, and played the D side in 34, one under. Goose, also in top form, scored a 70 and a 35, one under par.

Halved Eight Holes.

After eight consecutive holes had been halved in par figures—believed to be another record for public links play—Ficco rammed home a 15-footer on the ninth green for his winning birdie 3. Goose, on in two, took two putts for his 4.

W. W. Seay advanced to the second round of the top flight by defeating Dick Flynn, sporting goods salesman, 5 and 3.

In the third flight, J. M. Stoddard defeated Charlie Luttrell, 4 and 3, to enter the semifinals, and H. A. Peel won from M. L. Madden, 3 and 2, in a first-round match of that flight.

Over at Rock Creek, Miss Betty Garber, school teacher, defeated Mrs. Florence Godfrey, of Beaver Dam, 2 and 1, in the women's final. Miss Garber shot an 86 and Mrs. Godfrey 88.

In the third flight of the men's tournament Charlie Williams defeated C. L. (Pinkey) Wolford, 3 and 2, to go into the semifinals.

John Smith reached the third-flight finals at Anacostia by defeating Charlie Clements, 3 and 2.

Washington College In Final Game Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chestertown, Md., Nov. 15.—A realignment of the Washington College football squad is in progress as the Eastern Shoremen face their closing game here tomorrow afternoon and, it is believed, one of their toughest when Pennsylvania State Teachers College of West Chester will be faced.

Head Coach George Ekaitis plans to have Elton (Ace) Wilmot carry the ball more than he has recently. He has been used mostly in the blocking back position and has demonstrated ball-carrying ability second only to Bill Nicholson, now out from injuries.

Fox Gives Lively Chase To Keswick Hunt Club

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 15.—Members of the Keswick Hunt Club staged a lively chase this morning. Hounds met a 8 o'clock at Cloverfield, home of Miss Margaret Randolph. In a short time a red fox was started in the woods on the C. S. Pillsbury farm, and gave the riders a merry chase through the Stewart Barr and Bogert estates, with the 20 hounds close in pursuit. After four hours, Reynard went to ground.

Among those riding were Arthur Talcott, M. F. H.; Richard Hall, Mrs. John Sully, Mrs. E. H. Joslin, Dr. Mosettig, Mrs. James. G. Greims, Cheston Hall, Miss Jamie Terrill and Lloyd Payne.

Strange As It Seems —By John Hix

Capt. Charles B. Scully began his life saving career at the age of 12, when he jumped into the water to save the life of another boy. Since then, in 25 years, he has personally saved 435 persons. Capt. Scully is now director of life saving service of the New York Chapter of the American Red Cross.

His biggest single life saving feat was in 1918. A motorboat broke its tow line while towing a string of canoes and the canoes upset on the shoals of Rockaway Point, N. Y. Capt. Scully saved ten persons, resuscitated three others and recovered the bodies of four more victims. Nine years later the Government awarded him the Congressional Medal of Honor for this heroism. He joined the life saving service of the National Red Cross in 1919 and became director of the service for the New York chapter in 1925, a position which he has since held.

Strange as it seems, the color and texture of sheep's wool seems to be directly dependent upon the climate. Ordinary sheep soon lose their white coat upon being taken to the Barbadoes. Their wool becomes hairy and turns from white to brown or black. If they are again returned to their former homes, however, the wool reverts to its former color and quality.

Each country in Europe except Portugal has its language problems. In Russia scores of languages are spoken as native tongues. Portugal, unlike any other European nation, has but one language.
